TORL BUILD OF SOLD

You who to-day walk down the campus ways, Relinquishing at last what soon must be But a remembered place of student days Where life was young and flamed triumphantly, Within the covers of this book, you'll find Some record of your daring and your deeds, In friendly phrase, with never thrust unkind For who shall say who fails and who succeeds?

The hope, with quiet recollection, comes—
That down the road and by-ways of the years
Your step will still be timed to fortune's drums,
Your eyes be dimmed by only calming tears.

And may your story on the later page Sweeten the prospect of a pilgrimage.

FOREWORD

HEN from the clouds of memory reminiscence, like falling snow, shall descend upon us, here in the BLUE AND GOLD will be found the record of happy college days.

The past year, bringing to us, as it has, a nationwide recognition, has been the greatest year in the history of the University. Success has crowned her efforts in various fields — debating, journalism, athletics, and gratifying honors have been won by her in the arts and in the world of affairs. A great number of her sons and daughters have aided in these achievements, but to include within the covers of this volume the names of all who have contributed to the fame of California would be a difficult, if not an impossible, task. Our purpose and endeavor have been to select those events and persons most worthy of record. Perhaps we have omitted some who are deserving of mention, but if so, the oversight has been unintentional.

In conclusion, may we express the hope that the members of our class, with the passing of the years, will find in this, their book, an increasing interest and value.

These pictures then, enlivening recollections, may serve to remind us of the University as it was in the days when we followed its paths.

FOREWORD

nE year now ending is considered by friends of the University to have been the most critical in its history. To the successful passage of this year, the character and sympathy of the great student body has powerfully contributed. In the midst of numerous difficulties the loyalty and the good judgment of the students have been continually expressed in ways that have helped to make the University victorious.

In the campaign last fall for adequate revenues, a campaign such as every higher educational institution has found it necessary to make, the activity of the student body was the most impressive agency in persuading the judgment of voters. Although our measure failed, the great showing of interest and the extraordinary vote cast in its favor have placed the University in a stronger position before the public than it has ever had before.

The Associated Students have accomplished fine things this year both for their organization and for the University. Never has our system of student government been more justified by its results. It is no inconsiderable thing to organize the activities, handle the monies, and order the conduct of a student body ten thousand strong. The fact that the same organization formed to do this task when our numbers were small is, with the present enrollment, range and magnitude of interests, still able to do it better than ever before, is a splendid exhibit of vitality. Undeterred by the difficulties of the year, the Associated Students have carried through one great achievement which has been the dream of alumni and student body for many years. It has made possible the immediate erection of the Student Union. To have our life centered in such a building as will be represented by the Henry Morse Stephens Memorial Hall will be to bring to the assistance of our whole system of organized life a resource that has heretofore been lacking and that is indispensable for the future. The breaking of the ground at commencement time will mark the beginning of a new epoch in student life and affairs.

In addition to finally achieving the construction of the Memorial Hall the Associated Students have initiated another great task which will domuch to advance the University's great name and secure the enduring attachment of alumni and friends. They have initiated the plans for a great stadium. While these plans are still in the formative stageand while it will take considerable time to carry through this enterprise, if it is to be carried through on a scale worthy of this great place, nevertheless these plans have received the instant and hearty endorsement of Regents, alumni and community.

This has been a very great year in our athletic life. Never in her history has Caliannere me, sever in her instory has camfornia put into the field such extraordinary squads and teams. It seems as though the great qualities that lie behind athletic victories and which are a combination of physical and moral elements have culminated this year in an unheard of splendor. To have a great athletic spirit we must not only have great athletes, but we must have an entire student body lending its constant encouragement and enthusiasm to the performance of the men. This we have had this year and Those will ever have.

I am especially grateful for the heroic and admirable work performed by the men and women's committees in maintaining honorable conduct on the campus. Never have these grave responsibilities been better performed. In the last analysis, conduct is regulated here by public opinion, but public opinion is something which is itself formed and governed by the strength and character of leaders. It is through the difficult task of dealing considerately and justly with cases of impropriety and misbehavior that we come to understand how supremely important are moral principles and fidelity to them.

I think we may all now rest from a year which has many difficulties and wearisome tasks and turn to the refreshment of our summer period with the justifiable hope that we will reassemble here again in August under conditions more favorable for the success of this great place than have ever been known before.

FOREWORD

URING the past college year the future growth of the University has been in danger a number of times and in each case the faculty, students and alumni have united in their endeavors to aid their Alma Mater.

Foremost among these was the Amendment 12 campaign. Never in the history of the University have all those connected with it put aside their petty, factional differences and united for a common cause, as was done in this issue.

Town Calon Jaco

Old traditions have been rejuvenated this year and every attempt has been made by the various student committees to keep up the old California spirit. The rallies have been of a high type and have been the most effective medium of cementing the students in a united group. Old alumni and prominent members of the faculty have given talks and syncopated orchestras have been received with great favor by the audiences.

Besides that part of the University located in Berkeley there are the various branches, each of which has had many activities of its own. The Medical School, the Dental College and the Davis Farm have all organized student bodies and carry on rallies and other activities in the same manner as their mother institution.

Frederick J. Hellman.

COMMENCEMENT DAY

HE largest graduating class in the history of the University gathered in the Greek Theater on the Commencement Day of 1920 to sever their last connections as undergraduate members of this institution. The occasion was also marked by the fact that this was the first commencement exercise at which President David P. Barrows officiated as president of the University.

Four speakers from the Class of 1920 made up the greater part of the exercises. The speakers were Helen Roberta MacGregor, Harry Allan Sproul, Marion Mitchell Bourquin and Frank Howard Wilcox.

President Barrows then gave his address to the class, urging them to keep up the work started while members of the University.

The conferring of degrees and honors then followed and the exercises ended with the giving of commissions to members of the R. O. T. C.

SENIOR PILGRIMAGE

With smiles and laughter on their faces but with tears in their hearts, the Class of 1920 bade farewell to the campus in the annual Senior Pilgrimage on Monday, May 10th. The men and women assembled at their respective halls, where the women were addressed by Ruth Le Hane and the men by E. l. White before starting on their pilgrimage.

RESIDENT CONNOLLY BIDS FAREWELL TO MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS

The two bodies met at Hearst Hall, where Geraldine Pratt spoke to the united class from the steps. With the women and men all dressed in white the march continued to Gilman Hall, where T. F. Young spoke. At South Hall Dean F. H. Probert gave a short talk to the class concerning the benefits they had derived from their four years at the University.

S. N. Mering was the speaker at the base of the Campanile and from there the pilgrimage proceeded to the Civil Engineering Building where V. L. Jones was the speaker. Sam Grinsfelder spoke at the Mining Building, R. H. Muenterat at the Mechanics' Building and Merwin Gunzendorfer at the Architecture Building.

At the Library Katharine Schwaner, president of the Associated Women Students, told of the part the women of the University had played in college affairs. J. D. Wheeler was the speaker at the Agriculture Building and L. W. Irving, president of the Associated Students, spoke at California Hall. L. S. Thornburg spoke at Boalt Hall and N. S. Gallison at Wheeler Hall. Harold Dexter addressed the Senior Class at Harmon Gymnasium.

Under Senior Oak R. E. Connolly, president of the class, made his parting address and the pilgrimage ended.

1920 EXTRAVAGANZA

RIGINALITY both in plot and in music distinguished the 1920 Senior Extravaganza from its predecessors. "Here's How," written by R. W. Rinehart and W. A. Brewer, Jr., was staged in the Greek Theater on Saturday evening, May 8th.

The music was one of the features of the production and "Here's How," "Evcless Eden," "Wine That's in the Wood and Wood That's in the Wine" proved especially well received by the large crowd that filled the theater. Music for these numbers was composed by W. A. Fenner '20, W. M. A. Beckett '21, P. J. McCov '20, William Hillman '21, Norman Plummer '20, and Frank S. Burland '22.

The play was written about a phase in the prohibition law which gave consuls and ambassadors of foreign nations exemption from the enforcement act. A young collegian, recognizing the future of popularizing a soft drink by convincing the public that it contained a "kick," sets up a kingdom in the South Seas, with himself as king and three of his college chums as royal dignitaries.

Over two hundred and fifty Senior men and women took part in the choruses which were a feature of the production. The training of the choruses was done by Coach Fred Carlyle and the costuming was taken care of by Madeleine Benedict.

The leading parts were taken by C. S. Edwards, Narcissa Cerini, H. E. Frascr, Thelma Moss, L. M. Piccirillo, Katherine Cox, Sumner N. Mering, Doris Peoples, E. F. de Freitas, Faith Boardman, Grace Arlett, Madeleine Benedict, L. W. Irving.

GLEE CLUB TRIP

HEN the S. S. "Persia Maru" steamed away from the dock in San Francisco, Wednesday, May 26, 1920, twenty men stood at the rail on the upper deck and sang "Hail to California." The University of California Glee Club was starting on the tour of the Orient.

A week later the Varsity singers landed in Hawaii and gave two concerts in Honolulu, the first of the tour. Then came two weeks on the water, two weeks marked by rehearsals twice daily, before the Californians first caught sight of the Land of the Rising Sun.

Landing in Yokohama on the morning of June 17th, the Glee Club was immediately rushed to Tokyo, where they sang before ten thousand students at the Universities of Keio and Waseda. They were then entertained by Marquis Okuma, Japan's "grand old man," and later by Mr. Asano, a prominent capitalist. The same night the boys returned to Yokohama for the first of a two-night engagement.

June 19th the songsters sailed for China on the French Mail Liner "Porthos." They reached Shanghai four days later, gave one show while waiting for their steamer to sail for the Philippines, and left for Manila June 26th on the American liner "Columbia." After skirting through the edge of a typhoon, an episode which made rehearsing and enting matters of no importance, the "Columbia" delivered the collegians in the Philippine capital just before supper on June 29th, barely in time for the first show of the engagement which was scheduled that night at the Zorilla Theater. The boys were in Manila for ten days. They played to packed houses for five nights in a theater, entertained the Elks and Rotary Clubs for July Fourth, gave shows at Corregidor and Fort McKinley, and played at the Manila High and Normal Schools and the University of the Philippines.

A two days' sea jaunt on the "Hwah Ping" brought the Glee Club to Hong Kong, where they entertained the English and American residents for three days. Then they returned to Shanghai for a week's engagement.

Civil war in Northern China broke up the Glee Club's plans for playing in Pekin, Tientsin, and Korea. Instead, the Blue and Gold troupe traveled two hundred miles up the Yangtse Kiang River to Nanking, where college music and American jazz were introduced to 1500 Chinese students.

Returning to Japan, the Californians played two nights at Kobe, spent a day sight-seeing at Kyoto, performed before three thousand natives at Osaka. A show at Kamakura and return engagements at Tokyo and Yokohama ended the tour. The boys reached home on the "Siberia Maru" August 27th.

The tour was made under the personal direction of C. R. ("Brick") Morse '96, and was managed by L. G. Blochman '21. The personnel of the rest of the club follows:

First tenors—O. C. Hyde '20, Douglas Crystal '21, George Douglass '21, J. J. Pierce '23. Second tenors—Cletus Howell '20, Linden Naylor '20, Charles Cobb '21, Allan Parrish '21, Kenneth Walsh '21, Robert Johnston '22, Dave Phennig '23. Baritones—Paul McCoy '20, Irving Neumiller '21, Ralph Moore '22, Charles Strickfaden '23. Basses—Sumner Mering '20, John Duhring '20, Frank Morgan '20, Rolland Senter '20.

Financially, the trip was one of the most successful ever taken by the Glee Club and because of this a longer trip is being contemplated for the near future. The men who make these trips go as representatives of the University of California and help to spread the fame of our institution, not only in the United States but also in foreign lands.

NEARING THE TOP OF THE COVETED POLE

THE BRAWL

OMING as the climax to a week of roughing between the two lower classes the annual Freshman-Sophomore Brawl was held on California Field on August 20th. According to tradition the two paint besmeared teams serpentined onto the field to decide question of class supremacy, and for the second time in two years the battle ended in a tied score.

The Sophomores suffered defeat at the hands of 1924 in the tug of war, but retaliated by piling up large scores in the jousts and tie-up. This put the count at two all and left the winning of the pole-rush as the deciding event.

Fifty men were chosen from each side, the Sophomores to act as the defensive, and the first rush of the Freshmen brought the colors down despite the resistance of the second-year men. In the second rush 1923 claimed the colors, but in the decisive third attempt lost their advantage and when the pistol sounded two men on each side had their hands on the colors.

The members of the "Big C" Society acted as a Peace Committee and were called on several times during the afternoon to put a stop to the contests that grew too hot. Despite such incidents the Brawl was marked by a spirit of good-natured rivalry and was declared to be one of the best Brawls ever held.

AMENDMENT 12 CAMPAIGN

URNED over to the University as a last resort when the amendment was considered by the regents to be hopelessly defeated, the students and faculty put forth a final whirlwind campaign that came within a few votes of making the fight for Amendment Twelve a successful one.

In spite of losing such an important measure which would have given the University an assured income equal to its needs, the campaign did a tremendous amount of good in the University. In President Barrow's words on the eve of the election: "Whether we win or lose the campaign will have been of lasting benefit to California. In the attempt of both the faculty and students to aid their Alma Mater, all petty disputes and differences have been cast aside and the University is now a more compact unit and there exists better feeling among its members than before."

The campaign was intended to reach every corner of the State and circulars were sent out each week telling of the existing conditions at the University. Besides these, five letters were written by each student to some friend or relative urging them to support the Amendment. Alumni came to aid the campaign and succeeded in getting publicity by means of moving picture weeklies and free advertising.

Professor Raymond of the English Department had direct supervision of the campaign and too great credit can not be given to him for his help. Under him were a number of general chairmen, who supervised work dealing with the entire State, and committees from every county that did the work necessary to bring their communities into line. The progress of the drive was recorded on a large map of California situated between the Campanile and North Hall.

On the day of election every poll in the Bay District was canvassed by members of the University. Two students were placed at each poll to pass out cards favoring the measure. They remained on duty from 7 in the morning until 7 at night.

Money for the campaign was raised entirely on the campus by means of a tag sale and a nickel dance. The dance was given by the women and held in the fraternities on Hearst Avenue. The money was used for stationery and stamps; over 5,000 letters being sent over all the State.

JUNIOR DAY

UNIOR DAY, the one great traditional day celebration of the third year class, is a distinctive case of a class holiday which has come to be a university affair with no trace of class rivalry in it. Carrying out this custom the 1922 Class held the annual celebration of Junior Day on Saturday, November 13, 1920.

The idea of putting a day aside each year for the Juniors originated in a burlesque show given on the campus. The following year a one-act play was given and gradually the present form of entertainment grew up. The plays were formerly held in Hearst Hall in the afternoon and the Pron was held in Harmon Gymnasium at night. Up to a few years ago the day was celebrated on the Saturday following Thanksgiving, but this custom has been changed and it is now held in the middle of November.

As the University grew it was found that Hearst Hall was too small to accommodate the crowd that came to see the Curtain Raiser and the Farce and they were moved to Berkeley Theaters for a number of years and were then transferred to the Oakland Auditorium.

This year's Farce was called "Not So Bad" and was the work of R. L. Ingram and W. B. Hanley. The Curtain Raiser was entitled "Moonshine" and was written by T. E. Stealey and A. E. White. Both plays were given by the Junior Class in the Oakland Auditorium and the Prom was given at night in Harmon Gymnasium and Hearst Hall.

To Coach Reginald Travers and John W. Otterson, the Farce manager, are due the credit for the success of the performance. It was they that were responsible for the smoothness and success that marked the 1922 Junior Farce.

In keeping with the increase in numbers of the classes, two Proms were given at night, one in Hearst Hall and the other in Harmon Gymnasium. The idea of a Mission Court was carried out successfully in both places. A tiled roof, cement arches, a blue sky and large Mission bells converted the Gymnasium into a court-yard of a California Mission. H. C. de Roulet was general chairman of the day and F. W. Bartlett was chairman of the Prom.

SOPHOMORE LABOR DAY

NACCORDANCE with the annual custom, the members of the Sophomore Class turned out on March 19th for the annual Labor Day. Early in the morning the men of the class set to work to repair the trail to the "Big C," to give the emblem a new coat of paint and to improve the pit and the trail.

Most important of all was the applying of three coats of paint to California's symbol, to make it shine anew as an example to the Class of 1924, who were to take over its guardianship in a few days. New steps were built in place of those that had been washed away in the heavy winter rains and the pit at the side of the "C" was enlarged to shelter the large number of students in the Freshman Class. The men stopped work at noon to eat the lunch that had been prepared for them by the women of the class. The afternoon was spent in dancing in Hearrst Hall.

This Labor Day is one of California's oldest and most cherished traditions, one which is always looked back on with pleasant memories, because it is at these informal class affairs that the students become better acquainted with the members of their class.

ENGINEERING SUMMER CAMP

NE hundred and twenty-eight hungry student engineers arrived at Camp California, near the little town of Swanton, on the evening of May 13, to begin four weeks of intensive study in practical surveying. The party, consisting of one hundred and eighteen Freshmen and ten Juniors, had left Oakland in a special train for Santa Cruz, where they changed lines and after a bumpy ride of sixteen miles on the famed "Swanton Dinky" reached their destination.

Work started in earnest the next day: the Freshmen started in gaining a first-hand knowledge of differential and profile leveling, triangulation, and base line measuring. Each man received practical training in all phases of surveying by the end of the four-week period. The work required of the Juniors was the complete surveying of a railroad line. The upperclassmen were divided into parties for the accomplishment of this task.

Long hours were observed at the camp. Breakfast came at 6:30 on week days and dinner at 6 o'clock. Sundays were usually spent in resting, but excursions were made to points of interest and to the ocean two miles distant.

Professor A. C. Alvarez was in charge of the camp and he was assisted by Professor S. Einarson, A. Norcross, W. C. Pomerov and C. C. Swafford.

ART SCHOOL COLLEGE YEAR

FITH an enrollment of 766 students, the California School of Fine Arts has completed the most successful year in its history. This institution has made rapid progress since it became affiliated with the University and is now one of the foremost establishments of its kind.

During the past year most of the interests of the real artists connected with the Art School bave been concerned with a contest in painting and sculpturing that has been carried on. The winners of this competition will receive a trip to Rome and money to enable them to spend three or four years of study in the city which is known for its superiority in art.

The college life of the Art School has been varied with hard work and an occasional dance or "jinx." In these diversions a Bohemian atmosphere prevails and the costumes show the distinctiveness of the art student.

The daily routine of the Art School is devoted to life classes in the morning, and to portrait and sketch classes in the afternoon.

CHARTER DAY

N Honor of the University's fifty-third birthday, Charter Day exercises, with former governor of Illinois Frank Orren Lowden as speaker, were held March 23rd in the Greek Theater. Regents, faculty, alumni and students joined in an impressive ceremony in celebration of the anniversary of the University's founding.

Exercises for the day began at 10:05 o'clock, when the procession of students, followed by the members of the faculty in caps and gowns and the alumni led by the class of '79, made its way to the Greek Theater. President David Prescott Barrows, with Governor Stephens, ex-Governor Lowden, and President Emeritus Wheeler led the faculty procession to their places on the stage.

Raymond Cummings Brooks, D. D., opened the exercises with an invocation. Following this, President Barrows made an announcement of the gifts and appropriations made the University during the past year and spoke of some of its present needs.

Following these announcements, an oratorio selection by the University chorus and orchestra was rendered and met with the approval of the audience.

EX-GOVERNOR LOWDEN ADDRESSING CHARTER DAY GATHERING

Ex-Governor Lowden was then introduced by President Barrows as of the leading candidates in the last presidential campaign and as a man who stood for the right against the corruption of politics.

In his speech, ex-Governor Lowden emphasized the principle of the federal government being maintained over a centralized one. He pointed out some of the dangers which confront the federal principle of government and added that the rapid movement toward centralization at Washington must be checked or the value of the federal principle will be lost.

Aside from the Charter Day exercises, there were two other important events which took place on the University's birthday. The first was the dedication of the Armes Memorial Chair that was presented by the Players' Club in honor of the late Professor William Dallam Armes. Professor Armes was the first director of the Greek Theater.

The second event was the dedication of the new Senior Bench. In a short and impressive ceremony the bench was dedicated to last year's championship football team. The dedication address was made by President Emeritus Benjamin Ide Wheeler, who spoke on the importance of senior control in student government. O. C. Majors '21, captain on the championship team, expressed the appreciation of the members of the team for the honor bestowed on them.

DECEMBER DESCRICAL EXPERIENCE IN DESCRIPTION

DENTISTRY COLLEGE YEAR

URING the past year the College of Dentistry has had to meet an increase of students without a corresponding increase in its revenue. Nevertheless, the institution has made considerable progress and has enjoyed a year filled with student body activities.

Before the Amendment Twelve campaign, a Labor Day was held on the grounds, both students and faculty laying aside their work and uniting in an effort to clean up and beautify the grounds. At night a bonfire rally was held for the purpose of discussing and making plans for an active campaign on the west side of the bay.

From time to time various men prominent in the dental field have come and talked to the students regarding different phases of the work. Among them was Dr. Johnson, Dean of the Chicago Dental College, who gave a talk on the future of dentistry.

The members of the Dental College are organized into a student body and regular meetings are held. Willard Fleming was elected president and during his administration Labor Days, rallies and other activities have been carried on.

MEDICAL SCHOOL COLLEGE YEAR

HE past year has been one of great anxiety for the Medical School of the University and its actual fate was unsettled until late in March. This crisis in the Medical School came as a result of an attempt made by the State Legislature to cut down on all appropriations. Some misguided legislators wished to transfer the hospital to Berkeley, a step which would have resulted in the loss of a number of the foremost doctors from the staff. However, no such radical step was taken, but the departments of the Medical School, which are now located in Berkeley, will be transferred to San Francisco, thus tending to unify the entire course.

Plans for a new hospital are under way and the University in the near future will have one of the largest and best equipped institutions of its kind in the country.

Those in charge of the Medical School strive to bring about a more intimate association of the fundamental branches of medicine with the clinical side. These two are so closely associated that one needs the other to develope and when this end is brought about the Medical School will become one of the greatest medical centers in the West.

FARM COLLEGE YEAR

Frank A. Cleland, '21

HIS has been the most important year in the history of the Farm, and agricultural interests of the State in general.

The enrollment greatly exceeded that of past years and the line enrollment greatly exceeded that of past years and the loyal spirit shown by all students in their class work and athletics will be talked of forever in the history of the farm.

Our livestock took away the prizes at the big Portland show this year, and undoubtedly would have taken firsts in the International Show at Chicago if money had been available to send them there.

Other divisions as the Pomology, Viticulture, Poultry, Dairy Industry, Olericulture and Veterinary Science have also kept pace with the growing activities of the farm, and through experiments carried on here, have been of valuable assistance to students and farmers throughout the State.

Wonderful strides have been taken along athletic lines and, by the aid of an excellent football coach, we turned out two winning teams. Although our Varsity went down to defeat at the hands of the California Freshmen, we were successful in pilling up scores on other teams, and our Frosh team beat every team in their class by overwhelming scores.

Basketball had to be dropped this year because our Gym was not completed at the time practice started, and there was no available place near by where this practice could be had.

Our long-waited-for Gym was finally completed this spring through the untiring efforts of the faculty and students, and many games and dances in this new "Farm" building have greatly increased the number of happy days we spend here. 270 1922 BLUE 6 10 MD

Women's College Year

ATHLETIC RALLY

Two thousand women assembled for the first A. W. S. basket supper and athletic rally of the year, which was held on Hearst Field, to welcome the Class of 1924 and interest the women in fall sports. Dean Lucy Stebbins greeted the Freshmen on behalf of the Faculty and Gracella Rountree '21 and Miss Ruth Elliott, director of the women's physical education department, made short speeches urging the women to co-operate in the support of A. W. S. and women's sports.

Following an outdoor supper, election of Varsity and class song leaders was held, resulting in the choice of Melva Farwell '21 as Varsity song leader and Mary Rice '21, Emily Wardman '22, Mabel Ferry '23 and Ardath Leonhart '24 leaders of their respective classes.

Plans for the year's athletic program were outlined, after which the managers explained the different sports, a further explanation being given by "Sports and Pastimes" in a series of stunts representing the fall sports.

ANNUAL FOOTBALL RALLY

Enthusiasm and loyalty were the keynote of the second annual football rally which was held in Hearst Hall on the Thursday night preceding the big game with Stanford.

A basket supper was served in the lower hall of the building, after which the rally was held in the gymnasium.

J. E. Drew '21, Varsity vell leader, led the women in an "Oski" and "Bear" yell and then spoke to the enthusiastic audience on the part the women should play in the rooting at the coming game. Speeches were also made by Captain O. C. Majors '21 and I. F. Toomey '21, telling of the chance California had for victory and urging the women not only to attend the game but also to do their part in supporting the team.

Under the direction of Melva Farwell '21 toasts were sung to Dr. Wheeler and Dean Stebbins and after practicing several songs, the rally closed with the singing of "All Hail."

SPORTS AND PASTIMES JINX

Fall Field Day and the Sports and Pastimes Jinx were both scheduled for November 13th, but because of bad weather the former had to be abandoned, although the Jinx was held as planned for that evening in Hearst Hall.

The Jinx took the form of a masquerade dance under the direction of Sports and Pastimes to raise money for the A.W.S. loan fund, which was badly in need of additional funds at the time. Candy and favors were sold on the floor and the prize, offered for the most original costume, was awarded to the wearer of a Christmas tree dress. The masquerade was greatly enjoyed by those who attended it and a substantial sum was realized for the loan fund.

PRYTANEAN FETE

"Toyland" was the theme of the annual fete given by the Prytanean Honor Society in Harmon Gymnasium on the night of April 2nd.

Huge tin soldiers, Noah's Ark animals, large ABC blocks, pink lemonade and a Punch and Judy show helped to recall nursery days. Jack and Jill, with their famous pail, supplied the thirsty with punch; tables were set in Mary-Mary-Qnite-Contrary's garden, where ice cream and cakes were served and Little Miss Muffet defied the spider who sat down beside her and helped to sell candy, while Rack-ety-Packety House had a continuous stream of patrons to see the program presented there by some of the best campus talent.

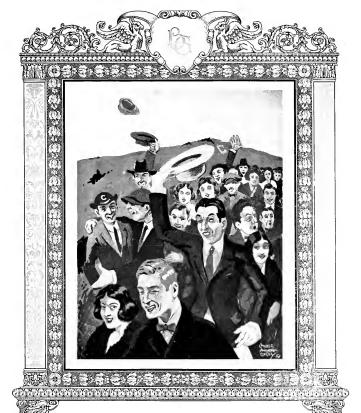

Floor space was allowed for a booth to display the handwork of the French refugees, which was presided over by some of the French scholars in French provincial costume.

The fete was one of the most successful ones the Society has ever managed and a large sum was turned over to the Women's Loan Fund and to the Infirmary to be used in purchasing an other machine.

WOMEN'S DAY DANCE

Women's Day dance was held on the evening of April 16th, Senior advisers and other upperclass women acting as escorts for the Freshmen. During the evening a program was presented which included a fashion show and several musical numbers which were well received.

FRESHMAN RALLY

HREE thousand Freshmen, gathered around a huge bonfire of their own making, received their first baptism of California Spirit at the Freshman Rally held in the Greek Theater on September 23rd. Spectators, filling every seat, crowded into the Greek Theater to witness the official welcoming of the incoming class.

Dean F. H. Probert welcomed the newcomers, characterizing them as "a motley bunch of cubs." He followed this with words of advice to guide them through their four years of college life.

The return of football to the campus was "Dummy" Wells pointed out that the primary aim of the year was to decisively defeat Stanford. Coaches Price and Rosenthal each emphasized the necessity of the support of the students in the coming season. The latter told the audience the encouragement a player got when he knew that the entire student body and particularly the feminine element was in the grandstands.

FRESHMEN BEGIN WORK ON THEIR FIRST FIRE

Music for the rally was furnished by a selected collection of "Jazz Artists" unequaled on the campus. M. H. Gleason '23 held the crowd under the spell of his bass voice and was rewarded by hearty applause. F. L. Storment '21 furnished a new variety of music, while G. L. Strickfaden '23 and his "Syncopated Seven" were not given a minute's rest, so well did their harmony appeal to the spectators.

On either side of the stage were hung large electrical slides to remind the students of the necessity of supporting Amendment Twelve. A screen was suspended over the stage and lantern slides were thrown on the stage depicting different phases of the campaign, and showed the actual crowded conditions on the campus. The rally was marked by a better feeling than had existed among the students in past years.

The rally closed with a serpentine to the base of the Campanile, where "All Hail" was sung.

The old California spirit was made still stronger both by the fact that the fate of Amendment Twelve, for which the students had fought unitedly and unselfishly, still hung in the balance and because of the proximity of one of the greatest football contests in the history of blue and gold gridiron battles. It was under these conditions that 4,000 pajama-clad Californians gathered around the immense bonfire to do homage to the Golden Bear.

The class stunts, as usual, were the main events of the evening and this year's performances measured up to the standards set by the classes in the past. The Freshmen gave a parody on a recent campus event. The Sophomore skit consisted of a vaudeville show with members of the class acting both as the audience and as entertainers. The Juniors had the best act of the evening which was in the form of a Stanford football rally. "President Wilbur," "Dink Templeton" and other Cardinal men did their best to work up the "Stanford spirit" until the California team made their appearance when they all left in a hurry. The Seniors presented a history of their class from the time they entered the University until their commencement, ending up with the optomistic forecast of an 88-0 victory in the coming Big Game.

Colonel Edwards '73, presented a medal to O. O. Hendrixon '22, for beating the record held by W. A. Magee '85. This medal has been presented by Mr. Magee, a former record holder himself, to any man in the University who betters his old record in the 440-yard run.

The football squad entered in a body and sat in seats reserved for them. Captain O. C. Majors told the students that the football team was trying to establish a record for fight that could not be beaten and that the men would never admit defeat until the final whistle blew, no matter how much they might be behind. Coach Andy Smith said that the University had more fighting spirit than ever before and that the entire varsity was made up of as fine fellows as existed in any University.

After leading a final "Oski" S. N. Mering presented the yell leader's cane to J. E. Drew, the present yell leader. In his speech of acceptance Drew said that the cane symbolized the true California spirit; yell leaders may come and go, but the cane, like the California spirit, stays on through generations.

The rally ended with the singing of "All Hail" at the base of the Campanile.

AXE RALLY

plenty of music, the annual Axe Rally was held in the Greek Theater on April 9th. As an escort to the historic axe the men of the Freshmen Class marched down to the safe-deposit vault to bring the trophy to the rally.

As the main speaker of the evening, the University had the opportunity of hearing the one member of the axe party who has not told the story of its capture before a college audience. A. J. Cloud '00 retold the old story of how the axe was captured and brought back to Berkeley, giving his personal viewpoint. He described how the axe was smuggled across the bay, under the eyes of a heavy Stanford guard.

One of the biggest days in the athletic history of the University was to take place in a few days, in which the representatives of California were to contest with three different universities. A. B. Sprott '21, captain of the track team told how the Varsity would work to beat the strong Michigan team. J. M. Rogers '21, captain of the crew, said that for the past fifteen years the University of Washington had captured the Pacific Coast championship, but that this year California had a better chance than ever before to win the title and that, while the crewmen knew the task before them, they were determined to turn the tide of victory this year. L. O. Meyers '21 told of the coming baseball series.

The axe was then turned over to its new custodian and the rally closed with "All Hail" at the Campanile.

THE MELTING POT OF CALIFORNIA SPIRIT

FOOTBALL SMOKER RALLY

1022 BUUL

The California fighting spirit came to a head at the Varsity Smoker Rally held just before the Big Game with Stanford. Yell after yell resounded from the enthusiastic students until the rafters seemed to vibrate from the noise. Every mention of the varsity was met by an enthusiastic response and never has the spirit been shown as it was on the eve of California's best chance to avenge herself from past defeat at the hands of the Cardinals.

Several fast boxing and wrestling bouts were staged which seemed to whet the desire to see the varsity. Musical numbers met with great success and then the football team entered and took their places on the stage. They were given an ovation as they came in that could not have failed to make an impression in the coming game.

Coach Andy Smith then gave a talk, praising each member of the squad and giving great credit to the "goofs" for the part they had played in putting out a good team to give the varsity competition. He then introduced the fourteen men who were practically sure of getting in the game and named the line-up that would start. Coach Boles Rosenthal gave his opinion of how the game would turn out, predicting that "Dink" Templeton was going to have a mighty rough time on Saturday and that he thought that Morrison would gain in actual yards on an exchange of punts. Speeches were also made by members of the team, telling of what they would try to do in the coming game.

Due to the inclement weather, the old tradition was not carried out of singing "All Hail" and giving a final "Oski" around a bonfire on West

TRACK SMOKER RALLY

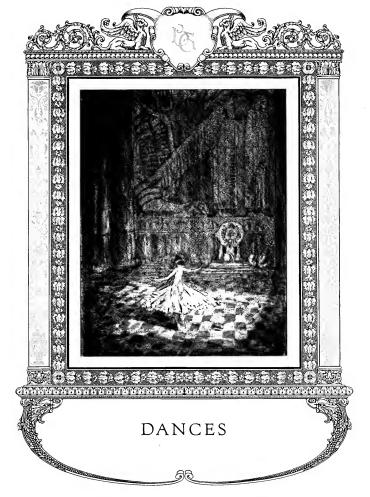

With the possibilities bright of making it two straight victories over Stanford, the men of the University gathered in Harmon Gymnasium on Thursday, April 14, to give the track team a big send-off for their meet on Saturday.

W. A. Magee '85 was the main speaker of the evening. While attending the University he was a member of the track team and held the record in the 440 for a number of years. He gives a medal for any man who beats his record of 50 seconds flat and this medal was presented last semester to O. O. Hendrixson, '22, for winning the race in the East in record time.

Coach Walter Christie then announced the men who would compete in the various events and predicted a winning streak for California.

er the stranger who desires to know the University look well at her publications. They are typical of this place and its traditions.

A far different, but no less important service tails upon the Dany Californian. This newspaper is now second in size to no purely college daily in the country. It has a large place to fill.

Humor is about the most welcome thing in the world. That is why every one loves the Pelican. Its colleague, the Occident, is a more serious and less popular monthly. This year it is being ably reborn from a long affliction of self-conscious high-browism. It is soon to have a supplement in which people will say what they think in an effort to disturb the even tenor of some ways grown obnoxious.

The California Law Review, the Journal of Agriculture, the Alumni Fortnightly and the young Commercia all serve well the special ends which their titles indicate.

THE DAILY CALIFORNIAN

mis newspaper is the largest student publication in the country devoted solely to affairs of the campus. It has a paid circulation of 9,000 and is the only medium of information which reaches all of the huge student body.

Its part in informing and unifying this great undergraduate body is a vital one. In such a large and scattered community the spoken word can hope to reach but a small minority, and with every succeeding jump in the registration figures, "The Californian" becomes a more important factor in California life.

ROM humble beginnings back in 1874. THE BLUE AND GOLD has steadily grown to a high and important place in California life. Its purpose is to preserve in an artistic and permanent form the undying memories of campus life. The book and its traditions hold an inimitable place in the hearts of Californians.

The duty of producing The Blue and Gold is in the hands of the Junior Class. This body elects the editor and manager from candidates recommended by the Advisory Board. This Advisory Board considers the fitness of the Sophomores who aid the editor and manager throughout the year. Several of these Sophomores are recommended as eligible for nomination. The competition for the honor and the University service which the offices afford is keen, and to make the recommendations wholly a matter of merit a percentage system is used in keeping tab on the activities of the respective staffs.

This issue of The Blue and Gold is the largest and most costly ever published. Even with its enlarged departments, many organizations have been turned away because of there being no available space for them.

One of the pleasant features of a book of this kind is the personal touch throughout, so that in later years, when dreams of happy college days float back, the pages of The Blue AND GOLD will make them live again. This touch is very hard to catch in so large a place. Every effort has been made to do it in this book. One means employed here for the first time in recent years is the production of most of the art work by students. One of the most important factors which makes the book a success or a failure is co-operation between the editor and manager.

THE PELICAN

G. F. MAC MULLEN, EDITOR

whit from the policy of plain speaking that it has pursued from its incipience, "The Pelican" has adopted several new features during the current year that have delighted its legion of readers more than ever. That the "Old Bird's" popularity is on the ascendant is a fact well attested by the nation-wide reputation of the magazine, which has the largest circulation of any publication of its kind. Excepts from "The Pelican" are reprinted in scores of college comic monthlies throughout the country.

The magazine now varies in size from forty-eight to sixty pages, well filled with excellent material from the pens of the leading campus humorists and artists. Under the guidance of G. F. MacMullen, '21, editor, the staff has put forth its best efforts. The personnel of the corps of assistants includes the following: R. L. Ingram, A. D. Hyman, W. A. Brewer, Jr.,

N. S. Gallison, T. H. Louttit, Buckley Mc-Gurrin, B. C. Crum, D. M. Gillies, Lindsay Campbell, Van Allen Haven, Clay Spohn.

The notable success of the volumn for the year 1920-21, pre-eminent in the annals of the "Old Bird," was brought about in a great measure by the effective and co-ordinated work of the managerial staff, headed by L. A. Wyllie, "21. Subscription cards, entitling the holder to nine issues, were put on sale in August and were quite generally purchased.

One of the most commendable features of "Pelly" during the past year has been the high grade of art work contributed by the art staff. The majority of the cover designs were drawn by Kathryn Humphries, a newcomer on the campus but one who has a bright future ahead of her.

1922 BLUE & GOLD · .) THE OCCIDENT

HIS year "The Occident" has done a fine thing; it has come down to earth. Not that flights of genius are despised by Californians, but an artificial flavor of the ultra, accompanied, as it has been in the past by an excess of free verse and smudged etchings, is less desirable than some real thought and the more welcome genius which talks in sentences.

It will take some time for all vestiges of its reputation to wear off as a magazine which one is not to attack without a pair of horn-rimmed glasses on, and mussed up hair. Whether it is the desire of the editor, or the owner of the magazine, the English Club, to appeal to the popular taste, or whether such a course has been made necessary by a paucity of moderns elever enough to be unpopular is a matter of conjecture. Another good thing to the credit of this year's administration is the starting of a magazine of opinion put out as a supplement to the regular issue of "The Occident." Under the careful and positive eye of Editor R. A. Beals, current issues, and matters over which issues should be made are brought up to set the campus thinking.

R. A. BEALS, EDITOR

Much credit for a broad policy and an efficient one is due Ralph Beals, and the manager, Pearson Henderson. The following are associate editors: L. G. Blochman, D. W. Davenport, H. R. Luck, Buckley McGurrin, Fred Monhoff, Idella Purnell, Harry Schary, Ellsworth Stewart, Marian Thanhouser and Carl Wakefield.

Contrary to the opinion of many, the writing of the articles in this magazine of opinion is not confined to the members of the staff, but the columns are open to any student who desires to air his opinions. With this as its purpose, this new feature has tended to increase the circulation of "The Occident."

THE LAW REVIEW

H. A. BLACK, STUDENT EDITOR

veny succeeding year sees "The California Law Review" increasing its prestige and becoming more acknowledged as a real asset to constructive legal thought and practice in California. Produced by the faculty and school of jurisprudence, it has the dignity of the academic knowledge behind it and the freshness of the student theorists. In its columns phases of both national and foreign law are discussed.

It has suffered a severe loss during the past year because of the absence of Professor Edward Elliott, whose interest and help have been important factors in the magazine's development.

Two events of singular interest dealt with at length in its pages throughout the year were the eleventh annual convention of the California Bar Association and the one hundredth anniversary of the Harvard Law School.

Continuing as editor for his second year is Professor A. M. Kidd, whose services have been an exceedingly valuable asset to the publication.

Harold A. Black is student editor; P. S. Mathews is manager; Rosamond Parma, secretary; faculty board of editors, Dean W. C. Jones, Professors McMurray, Radin, Robinson and Wright, also Dr. Calkins and Mr. Colby. Associate editors are J. J. Posner and J. C. Sharp. The student board of editors, and advisory body, is composed of a number of advanced students in law.

The magazine will enter its ninth year of publication with a well-founded reputation in the western field of law. It now ranks as one of the best college law reviews in the West and, with a staff next semester which measures up to the standard set by those in the past, a larger circulation should result.

THE AGRICULTURAL JOURNAL

A THE fall of 1919 the "Journal of Agriculture," which was one of the casualties of the war, was revived by the Agricultural Club and immediately entered upon a prosperous existence, which was due primarily to the loyal interest and backing of the students in the college whose official mouthpiece it was designed to be. During the present year the Journal has grown astonishingly in circulation, in size and in the character of its articles.

The magazine was intended originally to serve as a bond between the student of farming and the farmer himself, a medium whereby ideas might be exchanged. The successive editors have never lost sight of this aim. The "Journal of Agriculture" has helped not a little to inculeate into its undergraduate readers.

R. A. DAVIDSON, EDITOR

some adequate conception of the magnitude of the life work for which they are preparing themselves.

Great credit must be accorded the editor, Ronald A. Davidson, '21, and the manager, Lloyd A. Raffetto, '21, for the able way in which cach has performed his duties in connection with a publication that serves and represents so many University students.

The magazine began its existence in 1912, when the students in the College of Agriculture felt that they needed some means of reaching the farmers of the State with the information resulting from the experiments carried on in the department. From then on it grew in size, until the war, when it was dormant until revived in 1919.

Many of the articles which appear in this journal deal with subjects relating to the Davis Farm School and go to prove the absolute necessity of keeping that school a part of the University.

THE ALUMNI FORTNIGHTLY

R. E. BOSSHARD, EDITOR

ITH the number of our graduates annually increasing with such great strides, "The Alumni Fortnightly" becomes an organ of great weight and interest to Californians. All members of the Alumni Association, which now numbers close to twenty thousand people, receive this magazine. It keeps them posted on affairs of the campus, and their interest and support of projects which the campus needs is in a large measure due to the information received through this source.

One of the most popular sections in the book is that devoted to personal notes. It is a matter of common interest to us all what became of this campus celebrity or that "Phi Bete"; or who the campus belle of '03 finally married, or in what occupations the members of the alumni are engaged and the place of their business.

"Sons and Daughters of the Golden Bear" has recently been started as series in the magazine. This section gives detailed sketches of prominent alumni and their activity for California.

The principle purpose of "The Fortnightly" is to serve as a connecting link between the members of the alumni and the University after they depart from the campus. It carries the stories of the athletic contests to those unfortunate alumni who are unable to attend these events. Past years have proven the worth of this periodical to be indispensable and its future is unlimited.

R. E. Bosshard, '09, is editor this year, and he has made unusual strides in livening up the publication. As assistant to him is Leslie W. Ganyard, '15; contributing editors are L. A. Nichols, '17; R. W. Cortelyou, '20; B. C. Crum, '22. The manager is H. B. Knowles, '12.

THE COMMERCIA

LOR a long time the students and faculty of the College of Commerce had felt the need of some publication that would represent them, when, in the fall of the present collegiate year, steps were taken to inaugurate a monthly magazine to be known as the "Commercia." As a result of the new restrictions placed on certain Economics courses, whereby all but Commerce students were excluded, the college became more than ever a separate and distinct entity and needed more than ever a suitable organ for the expression of its ideas.

The general supervision of publication was placed in the hands of the College of Commerce Association. J. W. Otterson, "22, and H. L. Taylor, "22, were chosen as editor and manager, respectors and manager, respectively. The first issue, for February, appeared on January 28, 1921. The policy of the editors is to print articles that will not only be of value to the undergraduates, but that will interest also men in the commercial world, whose support of the magazine would be an invaluable asset.

H. A. TAYLOR, MANAGER

The fate of the "Commercia," as indeed of any new-born publication, rests entirely with those in whose interests it is put out and whose backing is so indispensable to its success. The first number met with generous approval, as evinced by the record of sales. If the magazine is to continue its usefulness this backing must not fail in subsequent issues.

Working under the editor and manager is a large staff made up of students in the College of Commerce, who are interested in journalism and advertising. When credit for the success of this new periodical is given, the editor, manager and their staffs should receive equal shares.

FOREWORD

ALTHOUGH it is to be hoped that with the formation of a society of nations war will be a thing of the past, this is not yet a certainty. In the absence of any system of universal military training, it is essential that there be at least a small body of trained men who can act as officers or instructors in the event of another war. This is the purpose of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. By establishing these units at the larger universities of the country and providing for at least two years' training in military science a measure of preparedness is achieved without militarism.

The Military Department of the University may well be proud of the progress it has made during the past year. The high standard of previous years has been maintained in the infantry branch, and in addition, an air unit has been established.

Joseph C. Akers.

MILITARY

The University Regiment this year consisted of three battalions of four companies each, each company having four platoons. During the year over 2.000 cadets received instruction in the rudiments of infantry drill. In addition to the regular biweekly drill and weekly theoretical instruction, the regiment took four half-day hikes, two of which were taken during the fall semester and two during the spring term. The instruction on these trips included deployed drill and tactical problems.

Several parades and reviews were held during the year. During the fall the cadets were reviewed by Major-General Hunter Liggett. A review was also held on November 10th in honor of Armistice Day and of the members of the detailed staff and cadet corps who had seen service in France.

The annual all-day inspection by the War Department found the cadets ready to be classed among the "distinguished college" regiments of the United States. The University of California regiment has been on the War Department's list of "distinguished colleges" each year since 1914, and it is to be hoped that this year will be no exception.

The regimental band upheld the high standard set in previous years.

THE REGIMENT PASSES IN REVIEW

1922 PLUS DOUL HISTORY AND ORGANIZATION

T THE request of the Regents of the University, an officer of the Army was detailed as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University in 1873. Since that time military instruction Lhas been given in accordance with the War Department regulauons and under the supervision of an Army officer. During this period, the cadet regiment has developed from a loosely disciplined body to a well-disciplined and efficient unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

Due to the necessity of an up-to-date military department, a staff was created in 1891 and the companies were organized on a modern basis. Lieutenant Hutton, the first Commandant of the cadet corps, was superseded by Lieutenant Benjamin H. Randolph, who in turn was followed by Major Sidney Colman. In 1898 Professor Frank Soule took charge of the cadets and for three years remained in command. Lieutenant Waite, who then succeeded to the command, reorganized the corps into a regiment of three battalions, each composed of four companies.

Following Licutenant Waite in 1904 came the then Captain John T. Nance, the present Commandant. In 1908 Major Lewis took over the work of Captain Nance. In 1912 "the Colonel" returned to this post and remained in command until 1917, when he was called away to active duty in the Signal Corps. In 1919 he again returned to the University with the rank of Colonel on the retired list.

An infantry unit of the R.O.T.C. was established in 1917 and has been maintained since then except during the fall of 1918, when a unit of the S.A.T.C. was maintained in its stead.

This year saw the inception of an air unit in addition to the regular infantry work. Sixty-two cadets were enrolled in this branch during the spring semester. The ground work is given on the campus and instruction in observing and piloting will be given at the summer camp.

The detailed staff which assisted Colonel Nance in instructing the cadets this year consisted of Maj. L. K. Underhill, Maj. Wm. A. Robertson, Capt. Frederick McCabe, Capt. N. E. Fiske, Capt. L. R. Boyd '15, and Capt. P. E. Peabody, '15.

Like the Colonel, these men have brilliant service records, Captain Peabody having been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre with Palm. Captain Boyd was cited many times for bravery in action.

1922 BLUE & GOLD THE SUMMER CAMP

IN ACCORDANCE with the provisions of an Act of Congress, field camps are maintained for a period of six weeks each summer for the further practical instruction of members of the R.O.T.C. These camps afford those who have demonstrated their ability an opportunity to receive actual field practice and healthful outdoor training.

A HUMAN TWELVE FORMED BY CADETS

In 1920 two such camps were held at Camp Kearney from June 17th to July 28th; a Senior Camp for university men and a Junior Camp for high school cadets. University men with two years' R. O. T. C. experience were given Senior Advanced Course. those with less were given the Senior Basic Course. The Advanced Course included work in range firing, musketry, field engineering, minor tactics and company administration. The Basic Course included Military Drill, Close and Extended order, Gallery and Range Firing, Bayonet Drill, Signalling, Physical Education and some work in minor tactics.

At Camp Kearney were assembled nearly a thousand students from practically every university and college in the West and from many high schools. Twenty-one men from the University of California were enrolled in this camp, ten in the Advanced Course and eleven in the Basic Course; and these men nobly upheld the high standard maintained by Colonel Nance and his staff at Berkeley. G. W. Marvin '21, W. W. Maybeek '21, and W. F. Dean '21, were designated as honor students in the Advanced Course, and, together with L. G. Putnam '21 and Eugene Robison '22, received the highest rating in this course. Maybeek and J. G. Hatfield '22, participated in the National Rifle Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, and made an enviable record there.

FOREWORD

ALIFORNIANS are men to reckon with in every field and this fact is being driven home daily as the University is taking its place as the greatest among American institutions. Ever keeping pace with the growth of the University, her activities have enlarged their scopes and are now entering an era of inter-sectional rivalry, with California leading the West.

Athletic contests appeal to the greatest numbers, but in other fields carnest groups of men and women have been highly successful in adding fame to the name of California. Foremost among these are the debaters, and this year they trained and produced the men who defeated the representatives of the East. The victory over Princeton was not a personal one for the speakers; it was but another evidence that "Californians know how."

Leadership in an even greater collegiate field is foreshadowed by the Princeton victory, and by the plans of the women's organizations to enter intercollegiate debating. J. P. St. Surr.

THE PRINCETON DEBATE

T is to be regretted that the most important debate of the year came at a time when it was impossible for a great many Californians to attend. The regular holiday exodus from the campus, as well as the football drawing card at Pasadena left very few students in the Bay section during the holidays.

However, a crowd of about one thousand people gathered at the San Francisco Auditorium on December 29th to hear California triumph over Princeton in the first inter-sectional debate. Professor H. R. Hatfield, Dean of the Faculties, presided over the meeting.

The debate was on the question: "Resolved, That Congress should pass laws prohibiting strikes in essential industries." California's debaters, defending the negative side of the question, skillfully confined the Princeton speakers to three points, and these points proved to be the downfall of the visitors. They were: First—The United States courts have been unable to agree upon a living wage. Second—If such is established by law, could it be enforced? Third—What is the detailed plan for such a law? The Easterners wanted to "leave the details for Congress to figure out," but this evasion was not satisfactory to the California team, and evidently not to the judges.

Of the California speakers, Morris Ankrum '21 was perhaps the strongest. His forceful delivery and his dramatic summary of the points of the California team brought forth applause from his hearers, and, we must suppose, had a favorable effect on the judges.

The work of A. L. Webb '23 and A. E. Murphy '23 was exceptionally strong. Both showed marked ability to concentrate on their strong points and to think quickly when new points were brought up by the opposition.

Princeton was represented by Charles Denby, J. F. Curris and R. M. Warner.

The decision of the judges was two to one in favor of California.

CONGRESS-SENATE DEBATE

HE Congress-Senate was held on December 17, and the usual spirited rivalry which results from the semi-annual inter-society contest was manifested. The question argued by the society teams was: "Resolved, That the national direct primary should be substituted for the present convention system for the nomination of Presidential candidates." Senate elected the affirmative and was represented by C. C. Hildebrand '21, P. E. Johnson '23, and H. F. Bohnet '21. The Congress team was composed of H. M. Griffiths '22, J. Benson '22, and M. C. Dempster '22.

Professors O. K. McMurray, G. H. Robinson, and Major L. K. Underhill, acting as judges, awarded the decision to the Senate team. Both teams showed signs of the most careful preparation, but the members of the Congress team were unable to cope with the experience of their opponents. The debate, however, was up to standard of past inter-society contests and was attended by a large audience.

Senate Debating Society won the coveted Arnold Trophy by taking the third victory in the intersociety competition for the trophy which is known as the "China Cup."

The individual victory of the debate, and the right to have his name engraved on the silver cup awarded the winning speaker, went to P. E. Johnson '23. The winning society was presented with a miniature Chinese stone tablet, wrought in silver. The trophies are the awards of alumni in China, who offer the prizes to foster interest in questions concerning China. The contest is held annually and the cup is given each year to the keeping of the best extemporaneous speaker on some question relating to the Far East. The competition is open to the members of all of the debating societies.

A general topic is announced one month before the debate, and at 5 o'clock on the evening of the discussion, a specific question is worded, and the debate is held at 8 o'clock.

The question chosen for the debate held on October 19th was: "Resolved, That the United States should adopt a definite policy looking to the termination of foreign rights in China prejudicial to China's sovereignty." The judges were President Emerius Benjamin Ide Wheeler and Professors O. K. McMurray and Max Radin. The Senate Society was represented by P. E. Johnson '23 and S. C. McClintic '21: Congress by H. M. Griffiths '22 and Henry Tsang '22, and Parliament by Dorothy Manchester '22 and Geraldine Hunt '23.

CONGRESS-PARLIAMENT DEBATE

PEPRESENTATIVES of the women's debating society, Parliament, by reason of a greater general knowledge of the question argued during the annual Congress-Parliament contest, were awarded the decision by the judges. The question discussed was: "Resolved, That the Irish people are justified in their demand for complete independence."

The speakers maintained the discussion in a logical manner, and relied rather on reasoning than on sentimentality to make their points.

Miss Olive Presler '22 was particularly brilliant in her expression, as well as her judicial quality of thought.

Parliament was represented by Olive Presler '22, Mildred Beall '22 and Grace Dietz '22, E. T. Kofold '22, Samuel Gardiner '23 and R. R. Bateson '21 debated for Congress.

The judges were Miss Gladys Murphy, Judge Devlin and Judge W. Waste.

22 BLUE & GOLD .

THE JOFFRE DEBATE

ACH year representatives of Stanford and California meet to contest for the ▲ Medaille Joffre, and the debate is regarded as the biggest of the college year.

Competition for the medal, which is awarded to the best individual speaker on some French problem, is between three students from each university, who are told the question for discussion two hours before the debate.

The general topic for this year's Joffre debate will be "France and the Treaty of Versailles." though, unfortunately, the debate will take place at too late a date to allow the results to be published, the Californians who will participate were chosen at tryouts held on February '7th. Those selected were C. C. Hildebrand '21, A. E. Murphy '23 and Grace Dietz '22, with J. E. Peyser '21 as alternate.

The discussion at the final contest is necessarily extemporaneous, sides being chosen shortly before the time set, and the question then announced. The medal is awarded to the student who shows the greatest knowledge of the subject, and the best delivery and expression.

THE FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE DEBATE

THE Sophomore team was awarded the decision over their rivals in the second-year class at the annual inter-class debate. The question was, "Resolved, That the United States should accept the League of Nations covenant." The affirmative speakers were F. Adams '23, S. W. Gardiner '23 and P. E. Johnson '23, and the negative were G. G. Olshausen '24, H. F. Selvin '24 and J. F. Moran '24.

CONGRESS DEBATING SOCIETY

Established 1867

OUNDED in the old College of California as the Durant Rhetorical Society, Congress is the oldest organization on the campus. Upon its membership rolls have been inserthed the names of men nationally and internationally famous. The traditions of a half-century have gathered around this organization and have made it what it is today—a California institution.

PARLIAMENT DEBATING SOCIETY

ARLIAMENT is a women's organization whose primary purpose is participation in intercollegiate and intersociety debates. It serves the women of the University as a forum for discussion of vital topics. It neither requires nor invites unity of opinion among its members, but rather diversity and cosmopolitanism of thought. Its only requirement for membership is effective thinking and speaking.

GOLDEN GATE FROM THE CAMPUS

Sometimes on a campus lawn, one looks out across the Bay, watching the respels making out to sea. Musting idly, one wonders on the many seas they sail, the various courses they pursue and the different port each hait as home. Turning then to reject on the swift yearly change of faces at the University, one is reminded of the old, old simile of the ways of ships and men.

FOREWORD

PRORTUNITY is afforded in this note to briefly explain the makeup of student activities. The Associated Student Body, it may be said, constitutes the whole; the various religious, social, athletic and academic organizations being parts of it. The functions of these institutions and bodies depend, in a measure, on the response and acknowledgment given by the members of the Associated Students of the University of California. Although they do exercise a great deal of influence and hold sway over campus life, they are in reality second in importance to the various sub-committees of the Associated Students, a few of which are: Rally, Card Sales, Student Welfare, Student Affairs and Student Union.

The knowledge of what the organizations are accomplishing and the laudations they should receive can not be encompassed in the few pages composing this section. Praise should be given, however, to the Graduate Manager's office for the successful installation of the student manager system, and respect given to those laboring for its continuation as an institution of the University. Especial mention is deserving of the Big "C" Society for its unceasing efforts toward the betterment of the campus and the preservation of its traditions.

What is contained in this section will enlighten the reader as to the activities and the personnel of the various organizations.

R. L. Vaughan.

THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

J. W. CLINE, PRESIDENT A. S. U. C.

HROUGH the years, the a c h i e v e m e n t s of the Student Body for the year 1920-21, epochal in importance, will be as the goal-posts for Californians. With registration figures overtopping all Universities in the country, the problem of amalgamation was indeed gigantic. The Student Body has shown itself equal to the task. It has proven the practicability of huge enrollments.

The "Big Game" with Stanford showed the immediate need for a Stadium. Stadium committees were appointed and it is expected that it will be completed before the "Big Game" in 1923.

The executive committee voted the necessary $50,000 to the Student Union fund to make the dream of twenty generations of University men and women a reality. Ground will be broken during Commencement Week.

Athletic relations with Stanford University were more firmly cemented by the agreement entered into by the executive committee. One annual game of American Intercollegiate football between the Varsity teams of the two rival institutions will be played covering a period of ten years.

Following in part the system of some of the larger Eastern universities, the Student Manager system was introduced this last year. The following student managers were appointed: Football, C. F. Honeywell; Basketball, R. B. Carr; Baseball, W. C. Schaefer; Track, H. E. Miller; Crew, J. R. Mage; Tennis, Simpson Finnell; Football, 1921, E. B. Gordon, and Basketball, 1921, H. Q. Noack.

Graduate Manager L. A. Nichols, '17, submitted the financial report for the period of January 1, 1920, to January 1, 1921, at one of the regular A. S. U. C. meetings. Following is the report:

	REVENUE	EXPENSE	Loss	GAIN

The wisdom of the executive committee is again shown by their appointment of coaches. During the past year several men have been added to the staff of Andy Smith, Varsity football coach. The scores piled up against opposing teams show their value. Employed as coaches we now have: Football, A. L. Smith, C. M. Price, W. A. Gordon, R. M. Rosenthal. Freshman Football, C. G. Wells, R. B. Watson. Basketball, Earl Wight. Crew, B. W. Wallace. Baseball, Carl Zamlock. Freshman Baseball and Basketball, C. M. Price. Soccer, J. B. Matthews. Swimming, D. Montell. Rugby, C. Mathews. Captain Will Bryan was chosen as trainer.

H. A. MAKIN Secretary A. S. U. C.

A publicity bureau for the distribution of A. S. U. C. news was installed with P. L. Davies as publicity manager.

THE ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

HE Associated Women Students, an organization of all of the women members of the A. S. U. C., has attempted during the past year to attain the goal of unity and co-operation among the four thousand women students, and to promulgate and spread the ideals of student self-government and the Honor Spirit. To attain these ends and to stimulate a feeling of goodfellowship and friendliness, mass meetings, rallies, basket-suppers and class open houses have been given.

By means of a tag day and dances, A. W. S. was able to raise $3400 to finance the Amendment Twelve campaign.

GRACELLA ROUNTREE President A. W. S.

For the first time in western collegiate history an Intercollegiate Conference of women students was held at Pullman for the purpose of discussing and attempting to solve the problems arising in the government of the women's leagues. The conference will convene at Berkeley for its second meeting, which will take place next November.

The annual Partheneia, "Lilies of Mirones," was given in Faculty Glade on April 7th and 8th.

GRACE ZIEGENFUSS Secretary, A. W. S.

The Executive Committee is as follows: Gracella Rountree '21, president; Helen Atkisson '21, vice-president; Grace Ziegenfuss '22, secretary; Cless Chedic '22, treasurer; Grace Bliss '21, athletic manager; Elizabeth Cereghino '21, A. S. U. C. representative at large; Edith Corde '21, Senior representative: Donna Watson '21, Women's Editor, Daily Californian (first semester); Minora McCabe '21, Women's Editor, Daily Californian (second semester); Edith Pasmore '20, Partheneia manager.

These women, who have been chosen to uphold their end of student government, have fulfilled their positions in an efficient manner, and have served California whenever they were called on.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The California Alumni Association has grown in numerical strength during the past year so that today it stands at the peak of its membership, which now totals almost 5000. True to its purpose, the Alumni Association worked diligently in the interests of Amendment No. 12 last fall, and has rallied to the support of bills before the legislature vital to the welfare of the University. The Bureau of Occupations is growing in strength and usefulness, having placed 200 graduates in permanent positions and approximately 2500 in jobs during the past year.

Among the activities for the promotion of fellowship among the alumni was the Commencement luncheon, which was attended by alumni from as far back as the Class of '65. The men's football dinner was held at the Commercial Club, at which 210 alumni were present, while the women's dinner was given at the Berkeley Y. W. C. A. The formal alumni Charter Day banquet was held at the Hotel Oakland on the evening of March 23rd. While in Pasadena for their game with Ohio State, the football team was entertained by the Los Angeles alumni on the evening of December 29th.

UNIVERSITY Y. M. C. A.

HE past year has been one of marked success for the University Y. M. C. A. The program of the organization has been carried on by a cabinet, various committees and the Senior, Freshman and Foreign Students Departments. A number of banquets were given during the year, the most important of which were the foreign students' Thanksgiving banquet and the Freshman football banquet.

Over $4,000 was raised on the campus for the support of Roy Service '02, who is engaged in student Y. M. C. A. work in Chengtu, China. Opportunity for community service was provided under the direction of Americanization Industrial, Boys' Clubs and Deputation Departments.

THE ST. MARKS CLUB

The St. Marks Club was founded for the purpose of promoting religious activity among its members. Meetings are held each Sunday evening in St. Marks parish house, where talks are heard from members of the faculty and visiting Episcopal clergy.

The Good Samaritan Mission of West Berkeley and the St. Marks Church each have Sunday schools that are conducted by the St. Marks Club. The placing of boys' clubs and gymnasiums in West Berkeley has also been under the care of this club. In addition, various other kinds of service have been undertaken during the past year with the idea of materially assisting the less fortunate in their struggle for the necessities of life.

1922 BLUE & GOLD

NEWMAN HALL

or twenty-two years the Newman Club of the University of California has ministered to the needs of Catholic students. These years are each a record of endeavors to promulgate high ideals of life, of government, and of social justice.

Similar organizations stand for these same principles in the Universities of Brown, Cambridge, Columbia, Cornell, Edinborough, Harvard, Manchester, Melbourne, Oxford, Princeton, Perdue, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Wellesley and Yale, as well as in the principal State universities.

In addition to the religious side of the work, which is carried out by means of public lectures and courses in scripture, ethics and psychology under the supervision of Dr. Thomas Lantry O'Neill, C. S. P., and Dr. Clarence E. Woodman, C. S. P., numerous social functions are held.

In the last year the students gave frequent receptions and entertainments. President and Mrs. David P. Barrows and the Most Reverend Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco received the incoming classes in both the fall and spring semesters.

The officers for the year were: President, A. P. Linsay; vice-president, M. C. Kennedy; recording secretary, Margaret McCone; treasurer, H. E. Woodhams.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

HE Christian Science Society of the University of California was organized in 1907 under Article XXIII, Section VIII, of the Manual of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

This article authorizes the establishment of Christian Science organizations in universities or colleges by members of the faculty or students who are members in good standing with the Mother Church, provided the rules of such institutions permit.

The society was organized to promote closer bonds of Christian fellowship among Christian Scientists, to welcome new students who are interested in Christian Science, and to offer faculty members and students who so desire opportunities of learning the truth about Christian Science. Fortnightly meetings are held for this purpose and consist of reading passages from the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, which are followed by testimonies of healing and experience in the the demonstration of Christian Science.

The University Library contains the complete works of Mrs. Eddy, the Concordances, Joseph Armstrong's account of the building of the Mother Church, "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy," by Sibyl Wilbur, and all the authorized Christian Science literature.

The society maintains an accommodation committee to aid students in obtaining work and to help them locate in suitable homes.

Each semester a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church is invited to give a lecture. These lectures give clear, concise statements of Christian Science and are for the purpose of correcting erroneous impressions concerning its teachings and the life of its Discoverer and Founder, Mary Baker Eddy.

A fall reception was given on September 21, 1920, at the Town and Gown Club where all new students interested in Christian Science were given a cordial welcome.

The members of the society unite in the purpose of directing all in the University, who are desirous of it, to an understanding of the principles of Christian Science as set forth in "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, and with the principles of American democracy.

Departmental Organizations

ASSOCIATED ELECTRICAL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

HE Associated Electrical and Mechanical Engineers is an organization composed of members of the junior and senior classes of the College of Mechanics. Its purpose is to promote student activities and afford a means by which the students may become better acquainted and further their technical and social interests.

A meeting room, which serves as a place to study, is maintained by the organization, to which students have access at all times. A small but well-equipped library composed of current textbooks, periodicals and catalogues gives the members an opportunity to keep in touch with the advances in engineering.

In the first semester the only social function undertaken was a mixer for the entire College, which was the most successful ever held. During the second semester a dance was held, and an upperclass smoker concluded the activities of the year.

The technical phases of the engineers' activities are represented by the student branches of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

EALIZING the value to be derived from the closer associations of the different students from other lands, the Cosmopolitan Club was organized in August, 1915, as a chapter of Corda Fratres Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs, Federation Internationale Etudiants.

During the past five years the club has given several very successful programs. These were generally in the form of national nights, which were intended to portray the customs and traditions of the various countries represented in the club.

When Président Barrows was inaugurated the various groups in the club, dressed in their national garb rendered tribute to him. This proved to be a very interesting and successful affair and was probably the first of its kind to take place in this country.

HE Pre-Legal Association had a very successful career this year. Several notable speakers addressed the society, one of whom was Max Thelen, a graduate of the University of California. Socially, the Pre-Legal Association enjoyed itself at the Pre-Legal dance, which was one of the most elaborate and successful informals of the year. During the second semester another dance was held, and a mock trial afforded amusement for the members of the association and the general public.

N THE fall of 1915 the faculty and students of pomology, citriculture, and viticulture had regular informal meetings every two weeks. They met to discuss and hear discussed those problems of general interest to men who are studying horticulture. The organization grew in attendance and enthusiasm until the fall of 1918, when it was abandoned because of the war. In September, 1920, the organization was revived.

During the fall semester seven regular meetings were held, a horticultural show was given, and on December 3rd there was an informal banquet, at which there were present speakers from the farm, the nursery, the shipping point, the manufacturing end, the selling, and the managing end of horticultural products. These speakers were Messrs. F. W. Kyoll, R. H. Taylor, G. N. Hicke, W. E. McPherson, Frederick Maskew, F. J. Veibmeyer and H. C. Dunlap.

The horticulture show took place on November 17th, 18th and 19th. The displays, which were as wide and complete as the season would permit, were from all parts of the State, from neighboring States and from other universities. Besides fresh fruits there were dried and canned bi-products and also a complete collection of walnuts, almonds and other nuts. The show was a success in every respect.

The association commenced the spring semester with a large number of enthusiastic members and a definite plan of good speakers was scheduled. A plan was also adopted whereby California fruits, from the farm at Davis, will be exchanged for fruits from other parts of the United States, thus a very good exhibit should be obtained for the horticulture show next fall.

HE Agriculture Club of the University of California, better known as the "Ag Club," is an organization of the students in the College of Agriculture. The objects of the club are: to promote the interests of its members; to bring them in closer touch with each other; with the college and with the rural communities of the State in general.

The club meets bi-weekly to carry on its business and to meet prominent men in agriculture outside of the University, thus bringing the members in closer touch with the practical side of agricultural endeavors.

One of the main activities of the club is the monthly publication of the "University of California Journal of Agriculture." The "Journal" is the official organ of the club, managed entirely by members of the club, and aims to bring the actual farmers of the State in closer touch with the Agricultural Department.

The Students' Welfare Committee of the club looks after the student affairs of the College, filling a place similar to that of the Associated Student Welfare Committee of the University. R. G. Meckfessel '20 was chairman of this committee for the fall semester and S. B. Harrington '21 during the spring semester.

The Agriculture Club dances have become prominent among the social affairs of the campus. These dances are given once each semester and unique and appropriate decorations have always been one of their main features.

The club has been a valuable medium for bringing the students in closer touch with the faculty and has always supported the administration in any movements for the betterment of the college and agriculture in general.

'ALLIANCE Francaise is an international association founded for the propagation of the French language and the creation of a better understanding of the French people.

The chapter at the University of California was organized on March 26, 1920, as a confederation of the French Club and the Circle Francaise; each club still keeping its own name and carrying on its own functions independently of the other.

An executive committee consisting of the officers of the Alliance and a board of directors, made up of the officers of the two clubs, carry on the affairs of the organization.

The Alliance has adopted six French war orphans and is supporting them with the proceeds from the Soiree Dramatique, and the charity ball. The former was staged November 4, 1920, at the Berkeley High School Auditorium; the charity ball being held in Harmon Gym, March 22, 1921.

With added enthusiasm the purposes of the Alliance are being furthered, the accomplishments of the society expanding with the growth of the university.

COLLEGE HALL

N THE fall of 1909 "College Hall" was opened as the first women's dormitory on the campus, with the approval of Miss Sprague, Dean of Women, and under the direction of Mrs. Susan Stone Davis. It was organized with student self-government, operating around a constitution written by Miss Sprague and a committee chosen from the house.

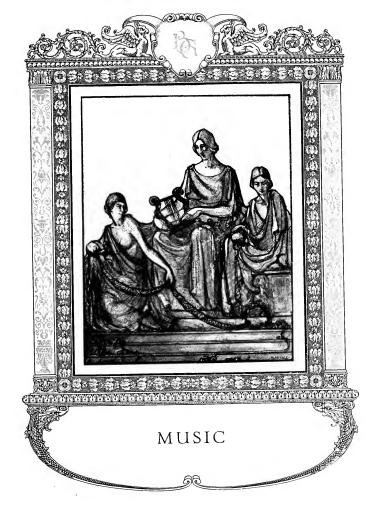

The aim of College Hall is that of a college home where the ninety-six women who live there may enjoy not only the social activities which they desire, but also the fellowship of so large a body of college women grouped together.

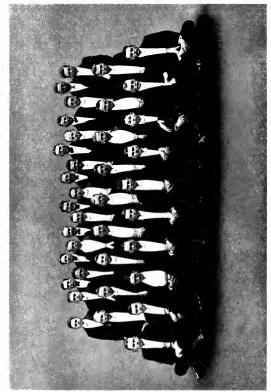

The hall opens each semester with a formal dance. During the semester there are usually two dances and various other social functions, such as faculty dinners and formal parties for the members.

DRAMATICS

FOREWORD

A FTER a long period of semi-importance in campus recognition, dramatics has come into its own. During the past season the stage has been set for plays of superior type, produced by players of superior talent. Through the co-operation of actors and coaches the productions have been presented with a good appreciation of finish and balance.

The season has been marked by the success that has come to the unpretentiously presented one-act plays as well as the greater and more elaborate productions. Much credit is due to the organizations that fostered the plays and contributed so splendidly to the success of the season.

The campus playwrights aided materially in the season's dramatic achievements. Critics have commented favorably on the technique and the possibilities of their work and have held many of them as worthy of being professionals.

To those who aspire to fame as playwrights, to those who seek success through acting and to those who desire but the pleasure received from a play well done, may the dramatic seasons of the future offer reward.

John A. McCone.

AUTHORS AND CO-AUTHORS

Treble Clef Opera

Howard Miller '19 and Richard Pollette '23

The combined efforts of Howard Miller, Richard Pollette and Eldon Spofford produced in "Mercy Me" an opera that was heartily received. Howard Miller has, through his many plays, gained the reputation of being one of the best campus dramatists. "Mercy Me" is the latest addition to his long list of successful dramas. This is Pollette's first work, and the campus public predict a great future for the young neophyte.

Spofford supplied the music for the production. Although he has often delighted the audience, in this work he outdid himself.

The Curtain Raiser

T. E. Stealey '22 and A. H. White '22

The Curtain Raiser, "Moonshine," was the initial work of T. E. Stealey and A. H. White. It is a delightful contrast to the farce. Here the humorous effect was obtained by the elever wording of the lines. This form of art was well adapted to the short one-act play. Although "Moonshine" did not possess the finesse of the Farce, it proved a pleasing forerunner to that production.

JANET BROWN

JOSEPHINE BROWN

Junior Farce W. B. Hanley '22 and R. L. Ingram '22

"Not So Bad," the 1922 Junior Farce, served well its purpose of unearthing play-writing material among the undergraduates. The authors, W. B. Hanley and R. L. Ingram, though prominent in dramatic and literary circles, make their initial contribution as playwrights, two years, while Ingram has been active as a member of "The Pelican" staff.

The Partheneia

Josephine Brown '21 and Janet Brown '23

The 1921 Parthencia, "The Lilies of Mirones," was the work of Josephine Brown '21 and Janet Brown '23. These two playwrights are well known in the theatrical circles on the campus. The masque was different from those in the past years, having early California life with a Spanish background as its setting.

1921 Senior Extravaganza G. B. Barnard '21 and Edmund Jussen '21

The 1921 Senior Extravaganza, "Music Hath Charms," equaled all others in the splendor of its choruses and groupings and is a monument to the artistic imagination of the authors. Neither G. B. Barnard nor Edmund Jussen had attempted playwriting before, and their success comes as a surprise. Their ability is shown in the handling of a highly complicated situation, developing from it a unified artistic whole.

THE MASK AND DAGGER SEASON

"Nothing But The Truth"

HEN the Mask and Dagger Society chose their play for the fall season of 1920 they made the initial step toward the success that was ultimately theirs. "Nothing But The Truth," by James Montgomery, although rather played out in the professional field, remained fresh copy for a college production. The selection proved a happy one.

The opening situation of the play is remarkable for its simplicity of action and motive. It well serves the dull drab background for the brilliantly colored complications which quickly follow. The trouble arises from a bet made by a young stock broker with his senior partner, the father of his fiancee. She furnishes him the money for a "sure thing" speculation. He wagers the entire sum that he can live twenty-four hours without telling a falschood. The complications that arise from the bet are amazing. There is no surprising denouement in the last five minutes to leave one gasping with incredulity, but the comedy situation, so well played, leaves one in good whole-hearted laughter.

Richard Leonard added to his laurels. He made the most of his clever lines and proved a convincing young broker. His struggle to tell "nothing but the truth" was carried out with admirable dramatic subtlety, and at no time could it be said that he over-played his part.

The two other partners of the firm were Mr. E. M. Ralston, played by W. J. Lloyd Corrigan, and Dick Donnelly, by Donald Gillies. Corrigan played well within his part and his characterization was pleasing. Gillies displayed his usual naivety and proved a well-chosen character.

Frederick N. Cohn played the part of Clarence Van Dusen with naturalness and understanding. Perhaps the most pleasing bit of character work in the entire play was displayed in the part of Bishop Doran, taken by Morris Ankrum.

As "Mabel," in the chorus, Miss Marie Louise Meyers played a refreshing bit of comedy. The work of Miss Kathryn Prather as Gwen Ralston, Bob's fiancec, met with approval, as did that of Miss Madora Irwin, as her mother, Mrs. Ralston. The other three characters played their parts well and rarely missed a point. They were: Ethel, a debutante; Sable, another of the Chorus, and Martha, the maid of Mrs. Ralston, played by Louise Smith, Helen Lampert and Marian Schell, respectively.

The play, which was given at the Twentieth Century Club, was received by an appreciative audience, made up largely of college students as well as Berkeley townspeople. The one thing that campus theatrical enthusiasts have to combat with is a seeming lack of interest on the part of the students. However, in regard to this Mask and Dagger production this did not hold true. As a light bit of comedy. "Nothing But The Truth" was a decided success.

"Mercy Me"

¶LUMBERTOWN" in September a rhapsody of color, music and girls, tinged with romance and elever situations-that was "Merev Me." Treble Clef Opera for 1920. Written by Howard Miller and Richard Pollette, harmonized and syncopized by Eldon Spofford, it was a student production throughout. From a dramatic standpoint it set a new standard for musical comedies on the campus. The acting was decidedly better, the various character delineations marked for their careful study, and there prevailed a happy spirit of responsiveness for the whole rather than for a few individual stars who took the leading roles.

Virginia Rucker, although new in campus dramatic circles, soon won the audience with her graceful combination of singing and acting. She is clever and as "Mercy Meredith" she was easily the star of the production.

Lee Lykins as Webster Page, the leading man, gave a very satisfactory account of himself. His violin solo, although hardly in keeping with the situation, was certainly ably played.

"Nero," the mad character, requiring real ability to make the most of, was well played by Llovd Corrigan. The "Nine O'Clock Boy" gave Lucine V. Edwards a fine chance for funniness. His playing of the part of John Jenkins, while exaggerated, showed an insight into small-town life.

Bernardine Holdridge was the source of much merriment in her excellent comedy character of "Barthsheba" and Ottelia Bindewald as "Faith" showed considerable talent in her dancing.

The chorus work, always the most difficult in a college production, was good. The "Aviation" chorus stood out as one of the best ever seen in a campus play. A large cast and a larger chorus deserve credit for their excellent work. The chorus is the part of the personnel of a play that is subjected to the most severe criticism and when praise comes it comes in blanket form; they deserve individual congratulations.

As a whole, "Mercy Me" was an appreciated success. It well warranted the two presentations, one in the Oakland Auditorium Theater, the other in the Berkelev High School Auditorium.

Although the dramatic situations and constructions were not as finished as those of the Farce, it was a fitting forerunner to that production. The work of the cast was commendable despite the fact that the majority of the players were quite inexperienced. The play was short and its funny lines and anusing incidents were enjoyed by all. over a mistaken room formed the theme of the interesting plot. In the staging of the curtain-raiser there are several difficulties which are usually met with, such as the late arrival of the audience and short period of time alloted for the producing of the play. In spite of these handicaps, the 1922 curtain-raiser was pronounced by all present as being up to the usual standard set by those of past years. The east and authors won for themselves a place on the list of those who contributed toward the success of Junior Day.

THE FARCE

"Not So Bad"

MARIE MEYERS AS "MARJORIE"

T WOULD be difficult to attribute the remarkable success of the Junior Farce, "Not So Bad," presented at the Oakland Auditorium, November 15th, to any particular factor. The whole production was an exemplification of good balance and organization. The play itself was a capable, original composition and was filled with many amusing situations. The authors, William B. Hanley and Robert L. Ingram, were engaged for four months in the composition of the play. The cast was chosen from 150 candidates and under the coaching of Reginald Travers went about their work with a pleasing air of professionalism. Rarely has a Farce cast included so many experienced campus actors in its cast. The entire cast did well and no one seemed to be the outstanding star.

The role of George Hickson Dodd, a lanky, awkward country youth around whom the plot centers, was excellently played by Frederick Cohn.

Miss Marie Louise Meyers, who has already established herself in campus dramatic circles, made a reality out of her role as "Marjoric." James M. Hamill as "Hooloran," the shadow, lent an added touch of humor to the production with his clever character work. Lloyd Corrigan contributed largely to the success of the play by his clever portrayal of the rotund character, "Uncle Effingham."

Miss Lulu Jarvis as "Miss Conception" and Charles Gates as "Archibald" afforded many laughs by their clever and spontaneous work. The names of Walter Lamb and Wickes Glass cannot be neglected, for they added materially to the pleasing presentation by the remarkable naturalness with which they adapted themselves to their difficult roles.

F. N. COHN AS "GEORGE DODD"

A Farce that fulfilled every requirement, that knew its limitations and kept within them, that was a definite dramatic accomplishment, was "Not So Bad." That was the hearty opinion of the critics.

The success was marked by the excellent co-ordination of the authors, players and coach. Those who contributed to its success were: Wilhelmina Barnes, Marjorie Dougherty, Mildred Henry, Lulu Jarvis, Irene McMillan, Marie Meyers, Marjorie Turner, Emily Wardman, Charles Burke, Frederick Cohn, Lloyd Corrigan, Clyde Edmondson, Kenneth Fratis, Charles Gates, Wickes Glass, James Hamill, Van Allen Haven, Trafford Hill, Evert Holmes, Robert Hutton, Russell Kimble. Walter Lamb, Theodore Merrill, Howard Neal, Elwyn Raffetto, Porter Sesnon, Lloyd Sweetman, Floyd Wilkins, Phillip Webster.

The Farce was as difficult to produce as any Junior play given in past years. The success of the performance came as a result of the unselfish spirit shown by everyone who was connected with the play. Among those who aided materially in bringing about the success of the Farce but who received no praise from the public are: J. W. Otterson, the manager, H. Q. Noack, who was responsible for the properties, and the many Juniors who aided either of these whenever they were called on.

AFTER THE ARRIVAL OF THE POSTMAN

RHEA COYNTON AS "THE SPIRIT OF THE

THE PARTHENEIA

"The Lilies of Mirones"
"When all is laughter and wine runs red,
Youth fast forgets the hour
when blood was shed."

No so, year after year, the Parthencia expresses the spirit of youth and beauty, of loveliness and all that is best in life. The theme of the masque—that of the transition from girlhood to womanhood—always remains the same, but with each production the setting changes.

The 1921 Partheneia, "The Lilies of Mirones," was written by Josephine Brown '21 and Janet Brown '23. The masque was characteristically different from those of previous years, having early California life with a Spanish background as its setting. This gave unusual opportunity for brilliant costuming and realistic effects.

With a prologue as an introduction, the plot of the play centered about the marriage of Mirones and Don Miguel. As a wedding present to his daughter, Don Estaban gave her his most treasured possession, a beautiful grove of oak trees. He wished her to clear the grove and make her home near him. The spirit of the grove intervened and demanded a sacrifice that must be offered only in the spirit of love. Mirones chose to give her life as a sacrifice in order to save those dear to her from the spirit of evil. The masque closed with Mirones being borne away by death.

Faculty glade, with its beautiful natural background, furnished the scene for this year's production, which was given on April 7th and 8th. This lovely masque of Mirones and her love that triumphed in self-sacrifice was one of the most successful Partheneias ever produced.

Interwoven with the action of the play were the dancing choruses of varied and unique arrangement. Carefree Spanish men and maidens joined in a large group dance. Other choruses were the Blue Jays, Tree Sprites, Poppies, Passions and Flames.

Barbara Bronson '24 as Mirones, by her enthusiasm and vivid portrayal, lived her part. Eileen Thornton '22 as Corteja, Florence Randall '21 as Marta, and Florence Ivanoff 23 in the role of Manuel, played difficult character parts well. As regularly as the Springtime comes with its inspiration of joy and hope, so year by year will the Parthencia bring its message of true ideals, high aspirations and a life of self-sacrifice. We can say truly, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

1921 EXTRAVAGANZA

"Music Hath Charms"

HELEN ATKINSON AND I. L. NEUMILLER AS "JANE AND JIMMIE"

USIC HATH CHARMS," the 1921 Extravaganza by G. B. Barnard '21 and Edmund Jussen '21, ∟ will close a very successful dramatic season. The production, which was chosen because of its adaptability to the Greek Theater stage, will be presented on the evening of May 7th under the direction of Fred Carlisle.

Depicting college life on the campus and in old Egypt as its theme, songs and solo dances are interwoven throughout the three acts. The plot itself deals with an Amazon government in Egypt and the overthrowing of the ruling class. The action of the play progresses rapidly and the amusing situations at opportune moments lead to a finished production.

Brilliant costumes coupled with novel songs characterize the choruses, which represent subjects of Egyptian life. The music, which more clearly defines the theme, makes the title, "Music Hath Charms," ring true.

The principals of the cast are well chosen, both for the singing and speaking parts. l. L. Neumiller '21 as "Jimmie, the King of Jazz," will be a decided hit in his solo numbers. Helen Atkinson '21 as "Jane" will prove herself to be a maid with 1921 ideas. Others included in the cast of the production are G. R. Douglas, Florence Daniels, A. D. Hyman, Tervs Dietle, D. H. Wright, K. S. Craft, Kenneth Walsh, Jessie Russell, Nell Smith.

The extravaganza has always been one of the most interesting and looked-forward-to events of Senior Weck. From present indications the coming production gives promise of being up to the standard of those of past years. The author and coach are working hard to make "Music Hath Charms" live up to its name. The musical numbers are lively and the choruses are being trained to hold up their end of the production. Most of the cast are experienced campus players and the extravaganza promises to be a big success.

ENGLISH CLUB PLAYS

"Kismet"

Domance and splendor, blended with pathos and sordidness, make Edward Knoblock's "Kismet" a landmark in theatrical progress; even as the work of the English Club on the 1921 performance set a mark for future ambitious producers of campus plays.

The much discussed "hoodoo" of the English Club productions at first seemed about to destroy the beginnings of the "Kismet" performance, but upon the illness of Reginald Travers the Club members were fortunate in securing Mr. George E. Lask to coach the play. The work of Mr. Lask, added to the willingness and talent of the student actors and artists who handled the scenery, stage and costumes, made the play one of the biggest ever seen in the Greek Theater.

Ten scenes were included in the showing, which took place on April 20th, and the work of the students proved conclusively that Greek Theater plays can be staged without faculty aid. The performance even surpassed that of "If I Were King", the play given by the English Club last year. The success of "Kismet" did not come as the result of any one person's efforts but rather from the result of co-operation by the cast, coach and those members of the English Club who volunteered their services.

The human role of "Hajj, the Beggar," who during the course of the day rises from beggardom to kingly authority and by night is returned to rags, gave great opportunity for Morris Ankrum "21 to prove his ability, and his interpretation of the role was masterly. An excellent east supported Ankrum in this difficult part, and in the number were many campus favorites.

Marie Louise Meyers '22 added new honors to her name in the role of "Marsinah," the beggar's daughter, and the center of the love theme as the bride of Caliph. Richard Leonard '22, who played in last year's performance, portrayed the handsome "Caliph," the juvenile of the piece.

The difficult role of "Kut-ul-Kulub," queen of the harem, was played by Terys Dietle '21 with marked success. As "Mansur," the villain of the production, Fred Cohn '22, was introduced in a new role on the campus and he demonstrated his ability to do serious work.

Many other minor luminaries shone forth on the stage during the course of the "Arabian Nights Tale," but it is not possible to give notice to each. Every one of the fifty students cast for the fifty speaking parts, and a like number of "supers" fitted ably into the parts assigned to them and contributed to the success of the performance.

· 1922 BLUE & COLD

The adapting of the Oriental spectacle to the Greek Theater stage and the results of the art work were marvels which told much of the efforts of those behind the scenes.

When the English Club first contemplated the producing of "Kismet", the question arose as to whether it would be too great an undertaking. However after consulting various authorities on dramatic spectacles, it was decided to go ahead with the play. The play aside from being a great success, uncarthed new material on the campus for coming theatrical productions.

THE UNIVERSITY PLAYERS CLUB

ONTRASTING themes woven about the superstitions and customs of the various countries were portrayed in three one-act plays, presented by the University Players Club on February 25th.

Brilliant lighting effects contrasted color schemes that formed a background for the three dramas, which were: "Singing Pool," "Lonesomelike" and the "Proposal." The settings were designed by students and were made to harmonize with the moods of the varied themes.

"Singing Pool" was an Oriental play based on the Hindu custom of self-sacrifice. Poverty was the keynote of "Lonesomelike," which with its vivid setting in Scotland impressively portrayed life among the poor. Peasant life in Russia was portrayed in the "Proposal," a drama by Chekoff,

Those who took part in the production were: J. L. Corrigan '22, C. A. Gates '22, D. J. Gillies '22, R. A. Leonard '22, R. M. Polette '23, Terys Dietle '21, Marion Schell '21, Madora Irwin '22.

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE

OIREE DRAMATIQUE," presented on November 5th by the Alliance Française, marked the first production given by a campus organization in a foreign language. The performance consisted of four one-act plays, two in French and two in English.

Centering about the difficulties of the servant problem, "Rosalic," the first play, depicted the life of the bourgeoisic. Violet Lercara '23 and A. P. Coe '21 carried heavy French speaking parts. In De Musset's "Le Manteau Vert," the last play given in French, C. C. LeClerq '20 and E. C. Simpson '22 ably portrayed studio life. Supported by Nadine Barbe in the role of Marguerite, they held the interest of the audience, although they were handicapped by a lack of scenery.

The plays "Premier Amour" and "Pater Noster" were given in English and although they did not receive the attention that was given to the French plays, were well received.

NDREW L. SMITH faced in coming to California from Pennsylvania as Varsity football coach, the difficult problem of building a successful American team out of rugby material. For five years he worked heart and soul with this end in view and as the curtains fell upon the 1920 season, at the close of the Ohio State game at Pasadena, he had achieved his object, bringing fame to himself as well as to the Blue and Gold. Three years are yet ahead of "Andy" and all California places implicit confidence in him-win or lose.

SMITH, COACH

LIN C. MAJORS came to California in 1917 from the San Diego High School. He played with the Freshman eleven in that year and the next year, during the S. A. T. C. period, was field captain of the Varsity. His work in the succeeding year marked him as one of the country's best linesmen and at the conclusion of the season the honor was conferred upon him of captaining the 1920 Varsity. "Cort" played better last vear than ever before and concluded his four years of service to the University upon the gridiron at Pasadena by starring against Ohio State.

MAJORS, CAPTAIN

EORGE LATHAM came to California from the Alameda High School, where he had played rugby. He changed to the American game in his Freshman year in 1917 and played center on the first year squad. The next year found him in the service of his country. He returned to California at the start of the 1919 season and stepped into a regular place on the Varsity, holding his position against all comers for the next two years. The Varsity at the conclusion of the season elected him captain for 1921. It will be "Fat's" third year upon the Varsity and he should have a banner year, both as captain and player.

LATHAM, CAPTAIN-ELECT

ootball saw in 1920 the most successful year in its history. Remaining one of the few uncommercialized sports and untainted by the scandals seen in other national pastimes, it came more than ever into the hearts of the American people. In increasing numbers throughout the year, they gathered to see games of even a mediocre calibre.

And at nearly every large university, new stadiums were either erected or plans drawn up. The demand for proper accommodations for the vast crowds became in a single year an acute problem to be met only by increased capacity grandstands.

The year saw, too, the growth of intersectional football to a predominant position in intercollegiate competition. Eastern teams played Western, Northern teams played Southern in more games than ever hefore.

And at California the sport took on a new impetus with the best Varsity ever turned out to represent the Blue and Gold. After waiting five years the Golden Bear was able to put a Varsity in the field the equal of any in the country, a team capable of scoring over five hundred points to their opponent's fourteen.

A fitting climax came in the game at Pasadena where the Blue and Gold humbled Ohio State and won the merited recognition of the entire country. M. F. York.

THE PRELIMINARY SEASON

ALIFORNIA opened the football season of 1920 on the 15th of September with the formal call for candidates for the Varsity squad. The response was genuine and with a spirit of victory and the "will to win," over a hundred men turned out for the first practice. Some thirteen letter men had returned and within a week Coaches Smith, Rosenthal and Price had the team in shape for hard scrimmages.

Previously to this the class teams had battled for the annual supremacy in a scries of games. Under the coaching of Varsity men, the candidates for these teams were drilled into shape for the first games on September 4th. The Seniors won from the Juniors by a score of 14 to 0, while the Freshmen were fortunate to win from the Sophomores by a 7 to 0 score. In the finals of the series held the following Saturday, the Freshmen proved their superiority by scoring two touchdowns in the final half, winning the class championship for the year, 14-7. In the preliminary game for third place, the juniors showed a reversal of form and defeated the Sophomores by the overwhelming score of 38 to 7.

With the class games out of the way, the practice of the Varsity was carried on rapidly and the Bruin eleven was ready for the opening game with the strong Olympic Club team on September 25th.

OLYMPIC GAME-MORRISON ABOUT TO TACKLE OOBSON

CALIFORNIA 21 OLYMPIC CLUB 0

ALIFORNIA began the remarkable 1920 season with a cleancut, decisive victory over the Olympic Club of San Francisco September 25th on "Cal" Field. The 21-0 score indicates the comfortable margin by which the Bears were superior to the Winged-O, for never after the opening spurt did the clubmen threaten to score.

California went into the first game with a scant ten days' preparation compared to the Olympic Club's full month of practice. This, however, failed to give the invaders the upper hand, for "Andy" Smith's team was just starting that tricky and heady driving type of play that was to make the team nationally famous by the end of the season. Postgame statistics showed that the Winged-O had gained twice as many vards as California and double as many first downs, but even this failed to help the men from the City because California played a scientific game, leading her opponents on till they were exhausted from bucking the stiff Bruin defense. Then at the critical point she would produce the necessary punch to score.

CALIFORNIA 88 MARE ISLAND 0

CTOBER 2nd, the day that Mare Island sent her Sailors to Berkeley, was a memorable date in the history of California's "wonder team," for it started the series of record scores which set the sporting world agog from Seattle to San Diego. Mare Island was overwhelmed, 88-0.

The navy was a good team and played as fair a game as is usual from that type of eleven, but it had struck a tough proposition in "Andy's" huskies. The sailors no sooner had the ball than they lost it on downs or breaks and then the Blue and Gold parade would start. A pass, an off-tackle, a reverse buck—and scorers were busy changing the numbers on the board. This game was chiefly important for the excellent exhibition of the results of supercoaching it afforded. Every play was executed with machine-like precision; the defense was tight and impenetrable; punting duels were disastrous for the sailors; but above all, California starred in teamwork. Although Smith used all of his 30 men, it seemed to make not the slightest difference in the wonderfully consistent teamwork

Later games were to prove, however, that the judgment of the grads was hasty for this 1921 Bruin team excused none from tasting the cup of one-sided defeat.

MCMILLAN, TACKLE

Never before had a California rooting section reached such a stage of uproar; by the end of the first half they were starting the "Score! Score! Score!" appeal at the very kickoffs. This game started dopesters on their series of prophecies that California would win the conference title.

The feature of the game was that all, not two or three, were stars and coaches no less than players. There was one coach in particular, "Andy" Smith. From now on he was to be given credit for building rational American champs from ruggers in five years.

CALIFORNIA 79 NEVADA 7

EVADA lost to California on October 16 by the one-sided count of 79 to 7 on California Field. Although it was a crushing defeat for the Sagebrushers, they will never forget that "Rabbit" Bradshaw was responsible for half of the points scored on California during the entire 1920 season.

Blue and Gold rooters were sorry that Nevada scored, for they had hoped that the team would end the season unscored on, and perhaps some of the players thought such would be possible. Coaches agree that this touchdown which made California's invincibility doubtful was the most fortunate thing that could have happened. The team would not now be overconfident, that was certain. During the play California's tactics were mostly bucks and off-tackles of the "steam roller" type, while Nevada's offense was nearly always open and in the form of a pass. Bradshaw, the small quarterback, was the day's star and the backbone of the Reno team. California took the offensive at the beginning and scored three times in the first quarter.

NISBIT. FULLBACK

CALIFORNIA 63 UTAH 0

TAH was the last Bruin victim before the regular Coast Conference schedule and succumbed to a 63-0 shutout. Utah had been heralded as a dangerous stumbling block in California's road to championship, but the first Bruin offense swept away all fears of even a close game.

The Bruins were now playing in a cool, smooth, calculating manner that savored of the professional and the Mormons were at a loss to know how to block the smashing attacks of their unified opponents. It was this unity or teamwork that was becoming the most outstanding characteristic of the Blue and Gold eleven. Breaks were down to the minimum and the line was stonewall on defense.

Utah attempted a fast attack at the first of the game, but it was soon apparent that the change of climate was telling on the men, for they lacked the punch and vigor necessary to launch a successful attack.

Receiving the ball on the first kickoff, the Varsity settled down for a systematic bucking march down the center of the field. At first the opposition was strong and stubborn, causing the Varsity to resort to open work and end-runs to make yardages. Finally the persistent plunging was too much for the men of the Bee Hive State and they slowly began to give way before the Bruin hammering.

Within striking distance Sprott was given the ball and was sent through a large hole for the first touchdown.

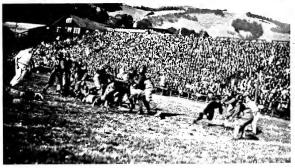

The bleachers were relieved from the tension of the two O's on the scoreboard and the players had hit their stride. Next it was Nisbit's turn to carry the pigskin across, then "Pesky's" again.

By this time the Mormon morale was threatened, but the defeated eleven was plugging away with all the fight that was left. Fight without ability, however, could not faze Andy's team.

CALIFORNIA 17 O. A. C. 7

HONEYWELL, MANAGER

ALIFORNIA stole quietly into the little town of Albany, twelve miles from Corvallis, early on the morning of October 29th, to await the coming of the morrow and the first conference game. In Corvallis, the Oregon Aggie squad went through one final hard practice in preparation for the coming of the Golden Bear.

And that night, while the rival squads slept, three thousand Aggies made merry. The town was turned over to them and for hours, it seemed, they serpentined, giving vent to an enthusiasm seldom seen in the Northwest.

The morning of the day dawned clear as a bell with but a tinge of frost in the air. It was a perfect day for football. And as the day wore on and the sun came out brightly, the field dried so that by 2:30 California's chances had increased perceptibly.

The game itself was one of the thrills of the Northwest. Throughout the first quarter the two teams hurled themselves against each other, gaining at times, only to lose the ball on some disastrous fumble, unavoidable on the wet, sawdust-covered field. Neither side was able to score in this period, although California gained on the exchange of punts.

But early in the second quarter, Sprott and Toomey took the ball up the field to a point from which Sprott was able to score.

The Aggies came on the field at the end of the half-time rest with a new lease of life. During an exchange of substitutes, the left end, instead of going off the field, whirled, raced down the field, and catching a long forward pass, carried the ball to within scoring distance.

The Aggie rooting sections were wild, the handful of California rooters strangely silent. And then the drive began. Moved as if by some superhuman power, the Bruins went up the field. Nothing could stop them, it seemed, and yet the Aggies held on their 15-yard line. Toomey dropped back. It was fourth down. Erb barked the signals, Toomey took a perfect pass from center and, while thousands gazed in silent agony, sent the ball whirling between the goal posts. The tie was broken and the score stood 10-7. It mattered not that in the remaining few minutes a recovered fumble gave the Bears another touchdown—the thrill had passed and the game was already won.

EBB, QUARTERBACK

HEN November 6, 1920, and the 49-0 victory of Bruin over Cougar is forgotten at California. American football will have passed away long since. The great northern eleven lined up on California Field before 20,000 fans, most of whom, Bruin rooters, were awed by fear of what the next few minutes might bring about.

Facing south were eleven powerful, determined warriors wearing Blue and Gold, trained for this occasion but little dreaming what the result would be. A year before many of these same men had faced each other as California vs. W. S. C., but then the Bears were confident that victory was near.

As a unit the thousands rose as the opening kickoff sent the ball far into Washington territory. A Pullman back received and made a beautiful return. Two bucks and it was first down for W. S. C. "Yes," the dopesters nodded, "this will be the tightest, closest game for many a season."

The Staters plunged for three more gains and were now dangerously near the last white line when suddenly on the next attack the Crimson and Grey offense was stoutly thrown back for a loss. Another buck—no gain. Another—and the Cougars failed to make their vardage. California took the ball and from then on it was a glorious march down the field till Morrison had touched it down and Toomey scored the goal. Morrison scored again and Washington "broke." She fumbled and lost the ball to Majors, who scored. From then on it was just a question of how one-sided the score would be, for W. S. C. never again proved to be dangerous.

EHIND them the most brilliant preliminary season in history, before them the "Big Game" and Pasadena, eleven Blue and Gold warriors took the field on November 20th to once again do battle with Stanford. Anxiously they awaited the signal that would hurl them into the conflict of do or die, while around them, walling in California Field from the outside world, sat some thirty thousand spectators, gathered to see the gridiron classic of the year.

The nervousness of the players as they went through their preliminary practice bore out the dim realization of an all-important conflict and added to it a spirit, a feeling of tenseness. On the sidelines the coaches paced anxiously back and forth, worrying despite their haughty air. No one knew better than they the strengths of the two teams; no one knew better than they that ere the sun had cast its lingering shadows over the grandstands one of the two teams would hold the championship of the Pacific Coast.

And then the kickoff and the echoing "Oski." The "Big Game" of 1920 was on. A fumble and California had the ball. Before a minute of play had passed, Stanford had weakened and taken the defensive.

The march up the field began. Sprott took the ball and bit tackle for nine yards and before Stanford had set themselves again Morrison plunged through for four more. Stanford was fighting desperately but seemed totally incapable of standing the onslaught of the Golden Bear. Sprott gained nothing on the next play, then Toomey carried on for four yards, followed by Sprott again, who went through for another four-yard gain. And then, ere seven minutes of play had passed, Sprott drove through for the first touchdown and Toomey kicked goal.

TOOMEY GOES THROUGH STANFORD LINE FOR 10-YARD GAIN

Stanford came back, fighting every inch of the way. When neither side could gain, the ball was kicked out of danger. California again attempted to take the ball up the field, gaining steadily until, on the 30-yard line, Stanford held for downs. Templeton dropped back and took the ball from center, but the ends broke through upon him and he kicked outside for a gain of 10 yards. It was California's ball on the Cardinal 40-yard line and, when Stanford again held, Toomey drop-kicked from the 20-yard line, bringing the score up to 10-0. The quarter ended with no further scoring as did the succeeding period. California seemed able to make substantial gains but lacked the drive now needed to score against the fighting Cardinals.

Halftime came with excitement at a fever heat in both rooting sections. And then the stunts began. Massed in a solid front, the California section in the east bleachers presented a checkered effect of gold and blue. Stanford on the opposite side was a mass of red and white. Stanford portraved a coffin and a "C" and then spelled out in a brilliant exhibition of bleacher work, S-T-A-N-F - O - R - D. California came back with one "C" fading into a larger one and then back again, each exhibition accompanied by a change of color.

Pandemonium greeted the two teams when they returned to the scene of conflict. Deeds took Sprott's place at DEEDS, HALFBACK half and the play began. And still the game was no walkaway. The Bruins carried the ball to the Cardinal 10-yard line, but with two yards to go and fourth down, Stanford held and Templeton kicked from behind his goal line. Late in the quarter, with the aid of a 15-yard pass, Morrison went over and Toomey kicked goal, bringing the score up to 17 to 0.

The fourth quarter saw Stanford's complete downfall and the end of California's triumph. Never had a team worked in more perfect unison than did the Bruin eleven in those final fifteen minutes. They played Stanford off her feet and when line-plunging became monotonous. California worked the ærial game to perfection. The Bears scored early in the period on straight football. An intercepted pass paved the way for the next touchdown and then in the final minutes of play Deeds hurled a forward pass to Muller for a 25-yard gain, Sprott following up for the final touchdown and 38 to 0. An intercepted pass from Slaudeman, a pistol shot, and five thousand Californians took the field in a snakelike serpentine.

SPROTT STOPS STINCHCOMB

CALIFORNIA 28 OHIO STATE 0

ALIFORNIA'S "wonder team" outplayed and defeated the "big ten" champions, Ohio State, 28 to 0, New Year's Day in the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena for the intersectional championship of the United States. The score was the largest ever rolled up against an Eastern invader.

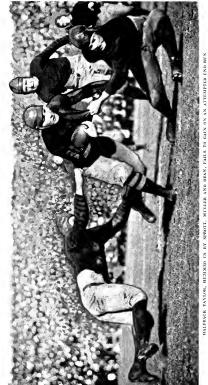

California met Ohio State at her own game—the aerial attack that had consistently throughout the season brought victory to the Buckeyes. Against the Blue and Gold defense Ohio was hopeless. Pass after pass failed and when they were completed "Andy" Smith had a defense to match them.

And Ohio was known for her last minute drive which had four times carried them to victory over "big ten" teams. It fell before California. Ohio was no more dangerous at the end of the game than at the first. They were outplayed, outgeneraled at every angle of the game.

The phenomenal passing of the Blue and Gold men was the life of the game. Never before on the Coast had there been displayed such a perfected "open game." The West was not given credit for knowing the finer points of the game, yet it was California's varied attack that had the invading team helpless throughout the game. It was new to Ohio, unexpected and they were unable to stem the tide of the Western defenders.

Out of the game rose two outstanding stars, Muller for California, and Stinchcomb for Ohio State. Of different types these two men showed complete mastery of the game. The Ohio man, an All-American half, lived up to his reputation and was the life of his team. Prettier running and field generalship had never before been seen at the Pasadena game. And Muller was everywhere. He smashed the Ohio line and got clear for pass after pass on the receiving end. And then he dropped back behind the line to send the ball whistling through the air. It was one of these plays that brought the crowd to its feet—the longest pass ever made at a football game.

California's line outcharged its rivals and opened tremendous holes through which the hacks plunged for large gains. The Ohio forwards were unable to cope with the fierceness of this attack and, when the secondary defense came in to back up the forward wall, California opened up and forward passed her way to victory.

Every man on the Bruin line starred, while this distinction goes to Captain Huffman and "Tarzan" Taylor of Ohio. Captain "Cort" Majors, playing his last game for the Blue and Gold, played the best game of his career. Never before did he get into more plays, never before did he get down the field so fast.

MAJORS BREAKS THROUGH OHIO LINE TO BLOCK KICK

OHIO'S CHARGING LINE FAILS TO PENETRATE BRUIN DEFENSE

A warm day with the sun blazing down on the gridiron of Tournament Park no doubt hampered Ohio, but it is doubtful if the invaders could have stemmed the California attack under any conditions.

Seven minutes of play saw California's first touchdown. An Ohio State fumble recovered by California and followed by a versatile attack resulted in Sprott going over the line.

In the second period came the greatest play of the game. Muller dropped back and on a double pass from center hurled the ball fifty yards to Stephens, who, standing over the line, fell for the Bruin's second touchdown. Sprott went over in the same quarter on an end run after a varied attack for the next score.

22 BLUE & GOLD No score was made in the third period, but in the fourth Sprott circled the Obio left end to the five-yard line and then Deeds, who had replaced Toomey who had been injured, went over in two bucks for the final touchdown. In the remaining minutes of play Sprott stepped over the sidelines by inches as he fell over the goal line or California would have had another score.

It was a brilliant game. Ohio State fought throughout, but from the start was outplayed. It was another case of the East failing to measure up to the athletic standards of the West. When California went into that game, few but partisaned spectators conceded them an even break. And then when the smoke of battle had cleared away, California emerged at the height of the football world.

All conceded California the better team. There were few alibis. Coach Wilce, in speaking of the game, said: "I believe it was the greatest exhibition of modern football every played * * * I believe that with game conditions as they were, California would have defeated any team in the country."

All in all it was the greatest achievement of the Blue and Gold ever made upon an athletic field. California went into the game as the defenders of the West, they came out of it champions. Their work will not be forgotten.

ALIFORNIA and Ohio State are facing each other on the ten-yard line. It is early in the first quarter and California has the ball—Ohio has failed to make the necessary yardage and has lost the ball on downs. It is fourth down. California must kick. Nisbit is back of the line—waiting. Back of him stands the referee, directly before him Erb, quarterback. Sprott and Toomey are awaiting the charge of the Buckeye line; the ends are out to get down on the punt. Latham, center, is standing up in line, just before crouching into position to snap the ball. It is a crucial moment of the game. Nisbit, the way he stands, typifies the tenseness of the moment. He must get the ball away, the Bruin line must hold.

Forty-three thousand are gazing down upon those twenty-two men. They see far to the right, Nisbit; far to the left, Stinchcomb, all-American halfback. They, too, realize the situation, everything is quiet.

Across the field is the California rooting section, distinguished by the three California yell leaders. They are holding back the enthusiasm of the Blue and Gold rooters.

Far to the left, above the crowd in the bleachers, is the scoreboard, barely discernible. It tells the tale, C.—7; O.—0.

Close on this side is the Ohio rooting section made up of alumni from all the Middle Western colleges.

Higher up is the shadow of the press box from whence a dozen telegraphs will carry within a minute the result of the play before them.

And high to the left are the gray Pasadena hills standing as sentinels over the lowlands.

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

LUE AND GOLD football honors for the year 1920 are divided between two championship elevens, the Varsity and the Babes. Both teams climbed to the top of their respective ladders by equally decisive victories and, although the Freshmen could not hope to win national recognition, they still have the consolation that their team will help form the nucleus for the next United States champions.

When "Dummy" Wells, head freshman coach and former Varsity fullback, first issued the call, 125 members of the 1924 class responded for the pre-season practice. Coach Wells had to work under difficulty on account of the seeming lack of material at the first of the season, but the first game proved that he was equal to the task of producing a winner.

The Freshmen captured the interclass series by defeating the Seniors 14-7 and were then ready for the regular routine work of preparation for the season's schedule.

University High was the first comer, but fared ill at the hands of the Babes who administered a 42-6 drubbing. Their score resulted from pure fluke and a fumble.

Next came the first of many naval invasions of California Field when the U. S. S. Boston "gobs" took a 28-0 defeat from the Freshmen.

This game proved harder than the first and kept the first-year men busy preventing a score.

Eleven determined mariners attempted to show up the Frosh a week later, but fared even worse, losing a 33-9 shut-out.

After defeat at the hands of the Varsity the Mare Island sailors challenged the freshmen for a battle and lost in the first close game of the early season. The score was 14-3.

For their next week's exercise the Cubs took an easy game from the College of the Pacific by a 42-7 count. An intercepted pass gave the invaders their only score.

following Saturday the Davis Farmers held the Freshmen to two touchdowns in a very close, but slow game, the

For the best played and fastest game of the season the Babes journeyed to Los Angeles for the Trojan Freshmen tangle on Bovard Field, November 6. Coach Wells had prepared his team for a tough opponent and was not mistaken, for Cliff Herd's bunch knew the game and showed finish and spectacular ability such as the Cubs had not yet met.

The Californians were at a disadvantage on the wet field, but began and finished the game with the best team work of the season.

Stanford Frosh, 7: California Frosh, 37.

Winding up a successful season in true championship style, the Babes invaded Palo Alto November 13 and crushed "Duffy" Seay's Redshirts beneath a 37-7 defeat.

The "Big Game" of the yearling schedule was straight football versus aerial contest with the invaders now and then proving that they could also complete a forward pass.

Well's instructions to "buck 'em off their feet" succeeded and the 1924 athletes celebrated the conquest of their first Cardinal scalps.

THE RESERVE SEASON

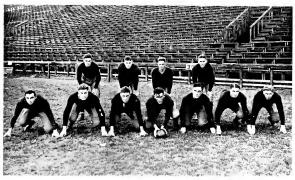

HEN credit for the great 1920 football championship is divided among those who made it possible, the California Reserves or "Goofs" come in for a substantial share.

Through the weeks and months of gruelling workouts the "Goofs" were always on band to serve as the object of whatever attack Coach Smith's whim directed.

When the candidates first donned their uniforms there were 200 men on the field. The end of four weeks saw this number cut in half twice and the first and second Varsities practically picked.

When the team is chosen most of the less fortunate candidates drop out and the number gradually dwindles down to the first and second teams. The Reserves, however, were the exception to the rule and practically took the place of a third Varsity. Their work was anything that would help to give competition to the Varsity.

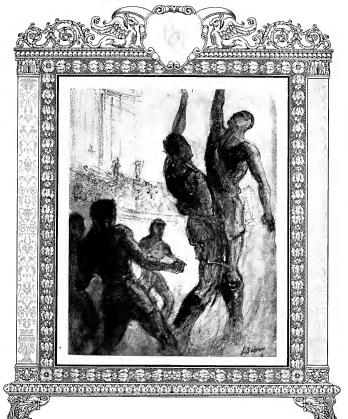

The "Gools," although not having a definite schedule, met several high schools in practice contests, Davis Farm, and several navy and marine elevens. The Davis game was lost by an 18-0 score and also the Mare Island Sailor game 33-0. "Bob" Watson and Paul Moore coached the team.

TACK P. SYMES '21 made the Blue and Gold Varsity in his sophomore year. Throughout that year he played consistently at forward and for the next two years was one of the mainstays of the team.

At the conclusion of the 1920 season he was elected captain for the ensuing year. Many difficulties confronted him and his work was hard, but he succeeded, with the aid of Coach Wight, in building up a successful team.

Its success was the success of Captain Symes.

SYMES, CAPTAIN

ARTHUR D. EGGLESTON '22 came to The University from the Gakland Technical High School where he had for three years played upon the basketball team.

He was captain of the freshman team in 1919 and, in the following year, was one of the outstanding stars of the Varsity. Last season he was again the star of the team and his work won for him the position of guard on the Pacific Coast Conference team. His reward was his election to the captaincy at the end of the season.

EGGLESTON, CAPTAIN-ELECT

FOREWORD

NTEREST in basketball at the opening of the 1921 season on the Pacific Coast did not appear to be high. It was a comparatively new major sport and the game had not developed to the extent which it had in the East. Managers and players alike looked forward to a year not greatly different from those which had gone before.

But there was to be a surprise. Public attention shifted to basketball. Enlivened perhaps by the thrilling victories of the Blue and Gold football team, the enthusiasm of California spread up and down the coast. Publicity was given freely and long before the climax of the season it was evident that the court game was to enjoy the best year in its varied history in the West.

It is not unreasonable to expect, therefore, that the season of 1921 will bring about many changes in basketball. Slighted to some extent in the past, athletic managers will be faced henceforth with the problem of accommodating those who wish to gain admission to the games and it is highly probable that the interest will so increase that large basketball pavilions will have to be built at nearly every important college upon the Pacific Coast.

THE ATHLETIC EDITOR.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

ASKETBALL for 1921 began during the Christmas holidays of 1920. Coach Earl Wight issued the first call in December, picked his squad in three weeks, and sent ten men on a holiday tour of Southern California which included a schedule of seven games. During the trip the Varsity played on almost every description of court in existence and under all the various handicaps possible to a team away from home. Loose and rigid interpretation of rules in different towns and for different clubs made it necessary for the men to develop adaptation to its fullest extent.

Coach Wight deemed this pre-season schedule the best training the team could have and attributes the Coast Conference title to the experience gained in the South. He admits, on the other hand, that the season might have been too long, causing the men to go stale toward the end of the regular season and on that account losing the Stanford series.

The squad returned from the Christmas trip on January 11th with six wins and only one close defeat to its credit. Los Angeles Y. M. C. A. lost the first game to the Bears by a 32-20 score, but the Athletic Club of the same city retrieved the lost laurels by a 21-19 victory the next night, December 30th.

The Southern Branch was easy on January 3rd, but the Men's Club of Los Angeles proved a stickler, the score finally stringing out to a 43-42 victory for California.

Pomona was not dangerous and Redlands lost in a one-sided 47-18 battle. On the return trip the Bruins administered a 56-12 drubbing to the Fresno townsmen's quintet, of which last year's captain, Anderson, was center.

Following the trip, Coach Wight reopened the squad to new candidates, but although twenty turned out, the squad remained essentially the same.

Five days was the length of the practice season before the first game, but coach and men made good use of the brief period of time bringing the team to top form for the opening contest.

California victoriously opened the 1921 season by the overwhelming defeat of St. Ignatius in San Francisco, January 19th. The Saints played consistently and hard but were unable to block the rushes of the Bears. The final score was 44-25 in favor of California.

E. H. WIGHT, COAC

Four days later California met and conquered the fast Winged-O quintet, 30-29, after one of the closest and hardest fought games ever played in Harmon gymnasium. California led throughout, the first half ending 14-10.

The second half started with renewed vigor on both sides until the score was well above the 20-mark. The invaders then staged a spurt which tied the score at 27. California shot a basket and a foul, the Olympies made another and the pistol ended the struggle.

Ås a preliminary game, this contest stands out as one of the most exciting of the entire season. The bleachers were continually kept in an uproar and it was not until the game was over that they were assured that California was the victor. Prospects for the coming season were bright after this contest.

THE OREGON AGGIE SERIES

wo cleaneut, decisive wins over O. A. C. January 28th and 29th gave California a running start toward the 1921 championship. The score of the first game was 33-16 and the second, 31-10.

The first game was the closest of the two and was witnessed by the full capacity of Harmon gymnasium. California doubled the Aggie score, but the game was no less a battle and not once did it drag.

LIBERT CENTER

The Bears were in top form and played beautifully consistent ball. California played the offensive game better than Oregon but her guarding was tight and almost impassable.

The second game started fast on both sides, but it was soon evident that California would repeat its first night's performance. The Bears tripled the Aggie points, but this was not because they had improved but because Oregon was in much poorer form and lacked the punch of the night before. Oregon's star hoop artists, Arthur and Stinson, soon found efforts to score futile and contented themselves with the attempt to keep California's score as low as possible. Spectacular playing was noticeable for its absence from both teams, but as in the other games teamwork was the Blue and Gold's chief basis for claiming the victory.

COOP, FORWARD

The following night St. Mary's Varsity took a 50-29 defeat from Coach Wight's second five. Fight was never absent from the invading team and although beaten from the start the Saints staged some dangerous spurts which kept the crowded bleachers alive throughout the contest.

THE WASHINGTON SERIES

N FEBRUARY 4th and 5th California met and split her two-game basketball series with the University of Washington. Both teams played whirlwind basketball, both games being examples at California.

California started the series by rushing the Sun Dodgers for a 20-10 lead at the end of the first period. After the intermission, Washington surprised spectators and players with the "neatest comeback" of the season and almost changed defeat to victory.

TE HAND GUARI

Two minutes to play and Washington had pushed her score to within one point of California's and had Talbot not fouled and Coop made the free throw good the score would have spelled defeat instead of victory for California. As it was the Blue and Gold won 33 - 32.

The second game was the best of the two from the point of even playing throughout. Fewer tries were made and more passing resulted in situations which were complicated and extremely interesting from the standpoint of the spectator. Washington lead after the first six minutes and won by the close count of 23-20.

FIRST STANFORD GAME

ALIFORNIA upset basketball dope by fighting Stanford off her feet in the first of the "Big Game" series and winning 30-24. This victory tied California with the Cardinals for first place in the Conference.

The biggest rooting section of the season turned out to support the Varsity in the last home game before the northern trip. The team was playing in top form with forwards and guards alike starring in scoring baskets.

At half time the Blue and Gold led 13-12 but early in the second half increased the advantage to the point of comparative safety. Stanford was in bad form and did not prove dangerous to the Bears after the middle of the last half.

THE NORTHERN SERIES

O NEIL, CENTER

After the Stanford game the Bruins went to Corvallis for a return series with O. A. C. Feb. 15 and 16.

The first game away from home all but resulted in disaster for with four minutes to play the Aggies were ahead, but the Bears netted four baskets and won, 24-19.

The second game went to California, 22-10.

CARR, MANAGER

SECOND STANFORD GAME

HE Varsity returned from the victorious northern trip to begin a few days' strenuous training to prepare for the second game of the Cardinal series on February 26. California had already won the Conference title but had a three-game series to dispute with Stanford as a separate schedule.

Stanford had been doped to win the championship by most critics and, after losing the Coast supremacy, she concentrated on the winning of the Stanford-California series.

When the two teams met, the Redshirts made good and served the Bears a decisive 30-25 defeat. California's forward were not up to form and missed many tries while consistency typified the playing of Stanford's team throughout the game. The Cardinals piled up a seven-point lead at the end of the first half and maintained it for the rest of the game, the closest Bruin approach decreasing it to a three-point advantage. Righter and Mills starred.

THIRD STANFORD GAME

Thousands massed in the Oakland Auditorium on the night of March 5 and saw California go down to defeat before Stanford in the third and deciding game of the series. The score was 25-21 and gives Stanford the 1921 title.

BRYAN, TRAINER

Stanford took the lead at the start and held it until the latter part of the first half when the Bears made a rally and took the lead 7-6. The first half ended, however, with the advantage again with California's opponents at 9-7 and never again to be regained by the Bears.

FRESHMAN SEASON

TNDER the careful supervision of Coach Price, the Freshman basketball squad played a very successful season, which terminated with a series of victories. After defeating all the high schools they were scheduled to play, the Babes began rigorous practice in anticipation of the series of games to be played with the Stanford Freshmen.

Shortly after the preliminary games, Talt, the Cub's star forward, was elected captain of the squad.

In the first game of the series, the Blue and Gold Freshman team invaded Palo Alto and scored an easy victory over the Cardinal squad, the final score being 37-21. The Babes proved themselves superior to their opponents in every phase of the game. Their passing plays, which would bring the ball directly under the basket, were too much for the Stanford team.

In the second game of the series the Babes bestowed an even greater defeat on their opponents and terminated the series by the winning score of 42-17.

Class numerals were awarded to J. L. Talt, G. J. Pearce (forwards), H. E. Wright (center), A. J. Ure, A. Kincaid (guards), R. N. Wetzel, H. Houvinen and J. H. Werle (substitutes).

FOREWORD

ASEBALL has had an odd and unfortunate year since the close of last season. Vivid exposures of the "throwing of games" in a recent world's series cast the discredit of the sporting public upon the national pastime and inflicted a wound that will take years to heal.

It would be foolish to say, however, that the game will never recover. Baseball is too popular to succumb to the dastardly work of a group of gamblers and players. It will take a long time but when the breach is finally mended the sport will be resting upon firm foundations once more.

The effect upon collegiate baseball has been so far unnoticeable although the popularity of the sport has undoubtedly been lessened to some degree. It is hoped that the sport will suffer little in intercollegiate competition for it would be unfair to cast upon the college teams a portion of the burden now borne by professional baseball teams.

College athletics, and especially baseball, have not yet reached the stage of commercialism and, as long as they remain so, no doubts can ever exist as to their squareness.

THE ATHLETIC EDITOR.

THE EASTERN TRIP OF 1920

alifornia's Eastern baseball invasion in the summer of 1920 was one of the most successful ever undertaken by a college team. Playing 27 games in a little over a month, all on foreign grounds, the Blue and Gold returned with 17 victories, triumphing over such teams as those of Harvard, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Leaving Berkeley on May 13th, fourteen men under Coach C. M. Price and Assistant Graduate Manager R. Cortelyou, headed East, stopping in the West long enough to humble Utah and Wyoming but succumbing to Nebraska, 1 to 0 in one of the most exciting games.

The invasion of the Middle West, then undertaken, proved very successful and the team reached the Atlantic seaboard on May 27th having met but two defeats. Syracuse fell before the Blue and Gold in the first Eastern game but in the next game Fordham took the measure of the Western nine, score 6 to 2.

Having humbled Boston College, the Bear nine journeyed to Cambridge to cross bats with Harvard. Felton, the Crimson pitching ace, was sent against Ellison, but he was batted to all corners of the lot and Harvard lost to a Western team, 10 to 5. Dartmouth and Amherst likewise met defeat and the team then turned to Springfield. California had struck a slump and lost the next four games, two of which were to Harvard and Princeton.

California turned upon Pennsylvania and before 10,000 spectators gathered at Penn's Home-Coming Day, triumphed over the Quakers by a score of 8 to 3 in ten innings. Penn's pitchers were unable to stem the Bears' batting attack, rallies in the ninth and tenth winning the game for the invaders.

ON THE BENCH AT BOSTON COLLEGE

MEYERS AT BAT-BARVARD

Splitting two games with the University of Michigan, California concluded the invasion and was ready to head for home.

A brief summary of the trip shows that three games out of four were won west of the Mississippi; five out of seven in the Middle West, and nine out of sixteen on the Atlantic scaboard.

In winning over 60 per cent of the games played California established an enviable record, the play of the team marking it as one of the best in intercollegiate competition in 1920. In every game there was the disadvantage of playing on a foreign diamond and every game was played after having traveled.

There were but four pitchers to take the mound and when two games were played in as many successive days it was impossible to take the benefits of using the first-string moundsmen.

The men making the trip were: Captain Ray Rohwer '20, L. O. Meyers '21, A. C. Rowe '21, Pierce Works '20, W. U. Hudson '20, A. C. White '21, H. A. Makin '22, Harold Dexter '20, I. F. Toomey '21, G. R. Ellison '20, Robert McHenry '22, E. H. Lowe '22, G. A. Shepherd '20, and A. C. Anderson '20.

THE PRELIMINARY SEASON

ALIFORNIA'S 1921 baseball schedule comprised twenty-one professional, semiprofessional and intercollegiate games. Every accessible ball league in the Bay region that could put a fast nine on the diamond was brought to California Field by Coach Carl Zamlock to play the Bears.

Practice with the hardest competition possible was Carl's prescription, with only one object in view—"Trim Stanford," All-star aggregations, including Cliff Ireland's, Torgenson's, and Gerlack's, successively defeated the Varsity. Then the Great Western Giants and the Ambrose Tailors took the Bruins down the line to defeat.

The "strong team competition" theory went so far as to include first the Sacramento Coast Leaguers and, near the end of the season, the professional Oaks. Both teams were victorious over California, but the Varsity had Icarned one thing—that it could hit big league twirlers and also meet strong opponents with little trace of nervousness.

ZAMLOCK, COACH

The team was characterized throughout the preliminary scason by a strong infield and, until the Stanford series when the entire team responded as a machine, the victories were in large part accreditable to the basemen and shortstop.

Two weeks of intensive training proved sufficient to develop an aggregation good enough to take on Cliff Ireland's for a 3-2 drubbing in the first game of the season. Things looked bright for a successful year, but it was plain that it takes a good deal of practice to turn out a finished team.

Four days later the Bears received a sctback at the hands of the Great Western Giants by a 9-5 score. The next game was against Cliff Ireland again, but his team had been materially strengthened, with the result that the Varsity lost, 7-2. California, however, had improved since the first game of the year.

WHITE

In a practice game the Bears crossed bats with the Glee Club and unmercifully beat the songsters, the final pile-up amounting to 12-1. Before February 26th the games had been for the most part ragged and uninteresting. The third Ireland Independent contest, however, proved to be a fast battle which the all-stars won by a 6-3 score, only after a hard battle characterized by a mound duel and good hitting.

Two days later, the Ambrose Tailors defeated Coach Zamlock's hardies in the first real baseball of the season, the Varsity losing, 6-4. The next game went to Torgenson's All-Stars by the close count of 4-3.

The first intercollegiate game of the 1921 season resulted in a 4-3 victory over the Saints at Santa Clara. In the eleventh inning the score was tied. Then came the break which netted Eells a long drive through third base.

"Mike" Morrow's single scored him and won the first battle of the series for California. This contest was one of the most exciting of the season.

TOOMEY

SMITH

On March 12th Santa Clara came to Berkeley only to receive another beating at the hands of the Blue and Gold ball-tossers. The Varsity was in top form and dazzled the Saints by superior bitting, the final score reading 10-5.

Although the series title went to the Bruins by virtue of the first two victories, the Saints came back for more in an effort to even up matters. The final battle of the two nines stands out as the closest game of the season, with the score standing 1-1 until the referee called time on account of darkness.

Just before the third Santa Clara contest, Coach Zamlock took his charges to Sacramento to meet the Coast League nine. The professionals took the game 4-2, but it was only after a protracted battle in which the Varsity proved that competition was needed to play stellar ball.

The Varsity, at this point, was developing into an aggregation of airtight fielders and firstrate hitters. It was after the Santa Clara series and the Sacramento games that Coach Zamlock began to prophesy that this nine would add another championship to the list of the year's athletic achievements.

California's next victim was the Olympic Club of San Francisco. The whole contest was one-sided and showed the effect of intensive practice as compared to a collection of stars. The game looked like an even break at the end of the first inning, but the second proved the complete undoing and humiliation of the clubmen. Ten runs were seored by the Varsity in this frame. The final score was 11-5.

THE ST. MARY'S GAME

The St. Mary's baseball game closely resembled the gridiron contest with the Saints in the fall of 1920, for the college nine was unmercifully handled by the Blue and Gold sluggers. The Varsity collected 13 runs on as many hits, while St. Mary's only touched the home plate three times during the entire contest.

Three days later Gerlack's All-Stars again challenged the Varsity and won, 3-2, after a close, well-played exhibition of the diamond sport.

The second Oympic Club fray turned out much the same as the first, California winning by the long count of 12-4. This was a better played game than the first and instead of bunching most of the runs into one inning they were fairly well distributed. Coach Zamlock's aggregation was characterized by the fact that there was little or no starring, but the team performed in a machine-like fashion that consistently sent the Blue and Gold figures across the fourth rubber for tallies.

Less than a week before the opening of the Big Game series, the Varsity took advantage of the best training possible in a game with the professional Oaks. California was snowed under to such an extent that the game was almost a joke from the standpoint of the spectators, but neither the team nor the coach was discouraged. One man did the damage accounted for most of Oakland's tallies. man was "Hack" Miller. Three home runs clonted out by the hefty left fielder, so well timed that they brought in eight runs, was enough to discourage any bunch of amateurs. The final score was 21-3.

With this game the preliminary season closed and the Varsity was prepared to cross bats with the Cardinal. Coach Seav's team contained some muchtouted stars, but pre-game dope, gathered from games with St. Mary's and Santa Clara, showed that if California played up to form the series title was cinched.

Another fact gave the Blue and Gold the advantage. Guy Draper, the Cardinal star twirler, injured his hand and was out of the game for two weeks.

Batting averages of the rival innes proved the Berkeley team to be the better as did also the comparative ratings of the two infields.

1922, BLUE (COL)

FIRST GAME

LEAN-CUT fielding and consistency won California the first of the Big Game series April 2nd on the Stanford diamond. The decisive 6-3 score was the result of superior playing by the Bears throughout nine innings of stubborn Cardinal resistance.

The game was won in the infield where the Bruin basemen and shortstop starred. The outfield also showed the sharp contrast between the coaching the two teams had received.

Green and Morrow battled to an even break on the mound. Califronia's twirler allowed more hits than the Stanford pitcher but "Mike" evened matters up by taking the honor of chalking up two more strikeouts than Green.

SECOND GAME

Stanford invaded Berkeley on University Day with a reorganized ball team and with Draper on the mound, but, nevertheless, the Bruin Varsity proved the victor, taking the game 2-1 and annexing the 1921 series title.

Both teams battled to a finish in the closest and best played fray of of the season. The machinelike fielding and strong hitting of the Bruins won the contest before the large and enthusiastic rooting sections of the rival universities.

California twisted the dope on hitting by collecting eight bingles, while the best Stanford could do was five weak connections.

With this victory came another Bruin championship.

THIRD GAME

California completed the 1921 baseball season by overwhelmingly swamping the cardinal nine on Stanford diamond April 16th. The 11-0 score tells the story of a onesided contest which was won by the coaching of Carl Zamlock.

The Varsity performed with machinelike consistency and in spite of the muddy field succeeded holding the Cardinals to a shutout. Paul Morse, a pitcher developed in one season, starred on the mound for the Blue and fold.

This game closed the 1921 intercollegiate season and is the last appearance of the Bruins before the Oriental trip May 10th.

EELLS

FRESHMAN SEASON

OACH Nibs Price has chalked up another championship team to his long list of athletic accomplishments. At the beginning of the year the baseball call brought a mediocre-looking aggregation of Freshmen, but coaching turned the trick and the 1924 ball-tossers trimmed the Stanford Frosh for the yearling title.

Practice games with high schools and other ball clubs served as the season's training, together with experience at various times with the Varsity or second Varsity nines.

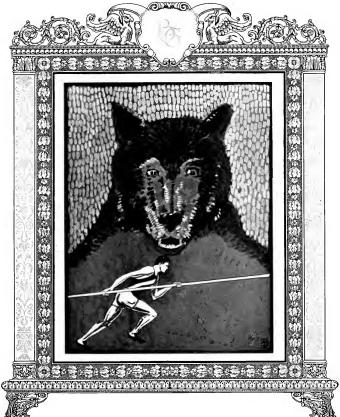

On April 2nd the Babes returned to Berkeley from the Farm at the long end of a 6-4 count. The Blue and Gold started the scoring in the first inning and kept the lead throughout the entire fray.

When Stanford Freshmen invaded California on University Day, the Cardinals fared even worse, for the Blue and Gold nine was in perfect form and trounced the visitors, 7-2.

TRACK

THE VARSITY SQUAD

APTAIN A. B. Sprott '21 has the distinction of being one of the greatest distance men ever trained at California. He went out for the Varsity track team as an untried man in his sophomore year and by diligent training rose to the rank of a star in the Stanford meet that year by winning the mile and two-mile and taking second in the 880. Since that time he has consistently won both the mile and half-mile for his team and his work has been a model for his teammates. He has had the honor of leading the greatest track team in the history of the Blue and Gold.

SPROTT, CAPTAIN

ELUM & GOLD

FOREWORD

HE Blue and Gold made a clean sweep in the 1921 track season, easily defeating the University of Michigan and Stanford in the two important meets of the year. The California Varsity was one of the best balanced of any of the teams ever seen in Pacific Coast competition and its performances stamped it as the greatest track team in the country. Coach Farrell of Michigan in a statement after the Wolverine defeat said: "California has undoubtedly the strongest track team in the United States today and could, in a dual meet, easily defeat any college team."

With the brilliant performances of the Varsity came the clamor to send the team East to the I. C. A. A. A. A. championship meet to be held in the Harvard Stadium in June. A decision of the Executive Committee favored this and a fifteen-man team will be entered.

It is hard to predict what California will do in the Eastern meet because of the uncertain competition. There are many teams competing and stars in nearly every event. However, California has a better chance than any college on the Pacific Coast and with everything favorable should make a brilliant fight at Cambridge.

THE ATHLETIC EDITOR.

THE PRELIMINARY SEASON

IVE hundred men answered the call of Coach Walter Christie for candidates for the 1921 California Varsity. Work began early in February and each aspirant for a Varsity position was given every opportunity to prove his worth.

The prospects for a winning team were uncertain. A number of the men who had starred the year before in the Blue and Gold victories either graduated or failed to return and it was a question of whether or not the team could be rounded out by the development of new men.

The distances were fairly well fortified with Captain Sprott and Waltz back. The fall crosscountry season had brought out a number of men, the most promising of whom was Dorr, and these men were expected to strengthen the team in these events.

The interfraternity and interclass meets of the fall season had stimulated interest and had brought to the fore a number of promising candidates in the other events.

The weather held the men back at the start of the year, but when the oval was in shape progress was rapid.

There were but a few minor injuries and the team was ready for the opening meet of the season against the University of Southern California.

THE FIRST U.S.C. MEET

California's Varsity went south on March 12th for the first meet of the season against the University of Southern California. Rain caused the postponement of the meet and it was held on March 14th. California proved far superior to the Trojans and was returned an easy victor by a score of 88½ to 41½.

Hendrixson of California and Schiller of U. S. C. furnished the most thrilling race of the day when the Blue and Gold star nosed the Trojan out at tape by a few feet.

THE OLYMPIC CLUB MEET

California easily defeated the Olympic Club in the annual meet held on March 19th. The Winged O team had previously defeated the Stanford Varsity by one point and the Blue and Gold victory of 88 to 45 clearly gave California an edge on her Cardinal rival.

The outstanding feature of the slow and uninteresting meet was the work of Dorr in the two-mile. He had previously won the event against the University of Southern California, but his time had not been exceptional and little was expected of him. He was matched against Hunter, a member of the American Olympic Club and was given but an outside chance to win. The Winged O star led for the first seven laps but toward the end of the eighth Dorr, who had been trailing him all the way, sprinted into the lead and crossed the tape, winner by three yards. The time was 9:48:4, six seconds better than the California-Stanford record. Hutchinson showed well in winning the 100 in :10 flat and the 220

in: 21:3. Sprott was forced to step in the mile and covered the four laps on a slow track in 4:27. Mejia was less than a second behind.

The performance of the Varsity, the first of the season on California Oval, was gratifying to California supporters. The weak spots in the team had been filled with the one exception, that of the hurdles. Christic has failed to uncover a man who could negotiate the barriers in winning time.

The next meet was to come a week later against the University of Southern California team, which was to come to Berkeley for a return meet.

THE POMONA MEET

Pomona College sent its track team to Berkeley on March 31st for a dual meet with the Blue and Gold Varsity. The southern team proved no match for the stronger Bruin team. however, and California won by a score of 88 to 29. Pomona took but four first places.

Daggs, the Collegian hurdler, was the star performer for the Southern team, taking first place in both the low and high sticks. His time in the high hurdles was :15:4 and in the 220 low hurdles :25 flat. Muller and Berkey were defeated in the discus by Widdes, who threw the disc 125 feet 7 inches.

Mejia surprised the spectators by breaking the tape in the mile ahead of Sprott in 4:26:1 The Blue and Gold runners were pressed all the way by Morman of Pomona.

Dorr again ran the two-mile under 10 minutes with Denton second.

Preliminary meets serve a two-fold purpose: first, they furnish competition for the Var-

With the big meet with Michigan less than two weeks off, there was much undone and Coach Christie prepared to add the finishing touches to the training of the men before they were to meet the Easterners.

The preceding meet with the University of Southern California had shown that the Bears were in good condition to meet the Easterners.

The Wolverines were coming West, rated as one of the strongest teams in the East, and Christic was not to be caught unprepared.

THE SECOND U. S. C. MEET

Charles W. Paddock featured the return meet with the University of Southern California on California Oval on March 26th by breaking the world's record for the 220-yard dash and tieing the record in the 100.

NORRIS

His time in the 220 was :20:4, two-fifths of a second below the record and in the century it was :9:3. Hutchinson proved capable of forcing Paddock but had no chance to win, his time in the 220 was :21:1, the old world's record.

The records of Paddock have not yet been accepted by the A. A. U. officials.

California easily won the meet by the overwhelming score of 105 to 26.

THE MICHIGAN MEET

or the second successive year, California brought an Eastern team West when on April 9th, Michigan contested with the Blue and Gold Varsity in the big athletic event of California's newly inaugurated tradition of University Day. In picking Michigan, the California authorities picked one of the strongest teams in the East and one which had defeated both Harvard and Dartmouth.

Michigan's team of fifteen men arrived in Berkeley with Coach Farrell the Monday before the meet and went into a week's training on California Oval.

April 9th dawned a perfect day and both Michigan and California were in good condition for the strenuous meet ahead of them.

Michign drew first blood by taking first and third in the hammer and the great classic of the California track season was on.

But Michigan was to prove a surprise. The eastern aggregation was totally in capable of stopping the Blue and Gold Varsity which continued winning event after event down the long program. Events which had been doped to go to the Wolverines proved easy for the Blue and Gold men as the score piled higher and higher against the invading team.

ARKLEY

Michigan was given first place in the 440 but Hendrixson and McDonald of California easily beat Captain Butler to the tape in :49:4. Then again California won the discus and shot which had been conceded to the eastern team.

Henderson won the high hurdles and Drew followed up with a victory in the low, easily defeating the other entrants in the fast time of 24.4

HENDRIXSON AND MCDONALD DEFEAT BUTLER OF MICHIGAN IN THE QUARTER

HENDERSON LEADING MICHIGAN MEN AT THE THIRD HURDLE

The relay was the future of the meet with two of the best teams in the country facing each other. Waltz started for California but lost a good ten yards and the race seemed lost for California. Henderson, however, made this up in the next lap and McDonald held the Wolverines even in the third. The final lap found Captain Butter and Hendrixson again facing each other with an even start. They fought practically even around the first two turns but Hendrixson then took the lead and was never headed, although Butler in a desperate sprint nearly overtook him.

Michigan was undoubtedly affected by the change of climate and by a poor training season. Under more favorable circumstances a much better showing would probably have been made. The meet did bring out, however, the tremendous strength of the California Varsity.

THE STANFORD MEET

ARK, threatening clouds hung low over the Stanford campus on the afternoon of April 16th, the day of the twenty-eighth annual track meet between the Blue and Gold and the Cardinal. Spectators cast anxious eyes toward the skies as they started to make their way into the stands long before the time set for the start of the meet. Experts had predicted an easy victory for the Californians, but in spite of this and the threatening weather, by the time the first call for the mile was sounded, every available nook of the bleachers was filled with the supporters of the two rival institutions.

Some of the more superstitious onlookers, fearful of the much-talked-of "Stanford Spirit," especially when the Red Shirt runners were competing on their own oval, little suspected that these men were to go down to defeat by the undreamed score of 85% to 45%. And neither did they expect that, in spite of the mud-covered track and the disagreeable weather, three Stanford-California records were to be shattered before the evening's shadows were to fall on the Farm Oval.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the milers lined up for the opening race of the 1921 Big Mect. Captain "Pesky" Sprott stepped out in the lead and set a slow, easy pace for the first three laps. Never once was he passed by a Stanford runner and broke the tape seven yards ahead of Waltz and West, his two running mates, who finished second and third respectively. Mejia, one of California's sure bets in the mile, was unable to compete because of injuries.

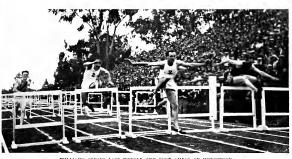

Following the mile came the 440-yard dash, which proved to be one of the most exciting races of the day. As the report from the starter's pistol sent the runners off for the gruelling quarter-mile run, Wright, the Stanford "dark horse," stepped into the lead, closely followed by Hendrixson. At the second turn the Stanford runner still held this lead and was not passed by Hendrixson until they were within fifty yards of the finish line. Hendrixson ran a spectacular race and crossed the line in 50 seconds flat, a yard ahead of Wright and tying the Stanford-California record. McDonald, the Bruin runner who had been figured to take second, finished after Wright, in third place.

The 120-yard high burdlers had a difficult time getting started and it was not until the third attempt that they got under way. Williams, a new Stanford man, took first with Henderson a good second and Wells of Stanford taking third place.

The next race, the 100-yard dash, was one that had been long looked forward to by track enthusiasts. Kirksey and Hutchinson were to fight it out for the honor of second best sprinter on the Pacific Coast. The California runner ran a great race but was unable to beat the Stanford captain, who negotiated the century in 10 seconds flat, with Hutchinson a close second and Comstock of Stanford third. Just previous to this race, rain began to fall and those few fortunate spectators who had umbrellas found use for them.

In the next two races, California was to prove herself far superior to the Cardinals in all the distance events. In the first of these two, the 2-mile, Dorr, California's greatest find of the season, ran true to form and finished far ahead of the nearest competitor, bettering the Stanford-California as well as the Pacific Coast Conference record by 7 seconds. His time in this event was 9 minutes 47½ seconds. California took all three places in this event with Saunders second and Wentworth third.

In the 880-yard run, the Bruin score was increased by nine more points when Captain Sprott, running his last race in a Stanford-California meet, easily won first place with Kitts and Hawes second and third.

The next race, the 220-yard low hurdles, had been conceded to Stanford and, running true to predictions. Wells took first with his teammate, Falk, second and Van Sant of California third.

In the 220-yard dash Kirksey again managed to lead Hutchinson to the tape. The two runners were even at the half-way mark, Hutchinson having lead up to this point, but from then on the race was all Kirksey's and although Hutchinson ran a great race, the wet track kept him from doing his best.

The closing of the track events proved to be the second best race of the day. The California team, composed of Saxby, Henderson, McDonald and Hendrixson, took the lead at the start and although hard pressed held it for almost the entire four laps. Saxby went with the pistol shot, gaining a yard in the start, which be increased to three at the end of the lap. Henderson took the stick and was passed by the Stanford man on the third turn. He came back, however, and within twenty yards had gained a lead of two yards.

The last lap took the bleachers by storm, for "Oxy" Hendrixson was almost beaten by Wright, who decreased a three-yard headstart to a seant foot as the pair broke the tape. This beautiful fight put up by a Cardinal dark horse was the surprise of the meet. Wright's time for the last circuit was 50 seconds flat.

"Brick" Muller was the star of the field events, taking three first places and one third. The competition in the high jump livened when Williams of Stanford made a spectacular leap which cleared the stick well above the six-foot mark. Muller tried but brought down the cross-bar in his first attempt. "Brick" in his next attempt won the event at 6 ft. 234 in. Williams took second honors, while Cottrell and Dalton of California tied with Heath, Stanford, for third place.

Between jumps, the rusty-topped athlete hurled out the disc for a new Stanford-California record at 121 ft. 8 in. Second and third honors went to Hanner and Sampson of Stanford.

Not content with winning two events, Muller entered the broad jump and easily won at 21 ft, 3 in. Burgess and Bassett of the Blue and Gold came in for the other two places, giving California the entire event.

In the javelin, Hanner established a new Stanford-California record by a throw of 170 ft. 8 in. Sorrenti and Muller gave California the remaining four points in the javelin.

1922 BLUE & GOID . IN

Two of California's record-breaking track stars in action against Stanford on the Farm Oval. On the right is Muller completing his discus throw of 121 feet and 8 inches—farther than any Stanford or California man has ever thrown it before. On the left is Dorr, coming down the straightaway in front of the Cardinal bleachers, in the final spurt which shattered the Pacific Coast Conference and Stanford-California records in the 2-mile race. Had the weather been fair, who knows what records would have fallen before this great distance runner?

1921 BLUE & COLD

The shot-put turned out to be a battle among the three big men of the Bruin track and field team, Majors, Mathews and Nisbit. Mathews heaved the 16-pounder 42 ft. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in., taking first place, followed closely by Majors and Nisbit.

The pole vault lasted through almost a third of the meet until Norris, California, and Black, Stanford, finally called it a draw at 12 feet. The effect of the slippery path seemed to handicap the vaulters a great deal, for both men have bettered this mark. Wilcox and Green, both Cardinal tracksters, tied for third place.

The field division of the Stanford meet featured the great all-around athlete, Brick Muller. His work on this particular occasion was, perhaps, his most spectacular exhibition and brands him as the most versatile trackster that has ever worn a Blue and Gold jersey.

Stanford only took five first places, while California scored nine and one event turned out a draw. In five of the events the Blue and Gold men annexed all three places and the Stanford scorekeeper had to resort to the use of chalk in entering the results on the board. The Bruins ran up, a score of 36% to Stanford's 17½ in the field and 49 to the Cardinal's 28 on the cinder path. In the distance events Stanford proved to be particularly weak and California scored 27 points in the three races.

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

ALFORNA'S Freshman track team victoriously brought their track season to an end by defeating the Stanford Freshmen on April 2nd by the overwhelming score of 943/4 to 36/4.

Five Freshman records went by the boards in the annual first year classic. Three went to the California Cubs and two to Eddie Sudden of Stanford. In the dashes Sudden ensily took first place, setting a record of :10 flat for the 100 and of :22 flat for the 220. His work was sensational and eclipsed the good showings of the other sprinters. Sudden concluded his activities by winning the relay for his team by a brillant race with a ten yard handicap.

California scored a slam in the 2-mile and Fiske in winning in 10:07:4 established a new record for Freshman competition. Bauman of California won the half in 2:01 which also was a new record. Harris in the javelin broke the fifth record of the day by throwing the spear 158 feet 7 inches.

The result of the meet was never in doubt but the Stanford first year men gave the crowd the thrill of the day by their plucky fight in the mile relay. California gained a sustained lead in the first three laps and Pierce took the baton for the fourth. Against him Stanford sent Sudden. The brilliant Cardinal sprinter, running in the longer race and tired from the 100 and 220, made a wonderful sprint down the final stretch and snatched victory from defeat by a foot.

The season was a very successful one for the Freshmen, who easily won every meet held with high schools and defeated Davis Farm in the last meet before the Stanford clash. Coach Christie had plenty of material to work with and by careful coaching developed the usual strong Freshman team.

Next year, the 1924 Freshman team should add its strength to the Varsity in a number of events. Harris in the javelin is of Varsity calibre and Borren, the broad jumper, will enter the Varsity season next year with a berth assured him. An injury prevented him from doing better in the Stanford meet. Previous to this he had on several occasions cleared over 23 feet. Bauman in the 880 and Fiske in the mile proved themselves to be worthy of consideration and with more training should round into good Varsity men.

Each year the Bear cubs prove to be better than the Cardinal and from the first year squad new men are taken to fill the vacant places left on the Varsity through graduation. Judging from the showing made by the 1924 Babes, the strength of next year's Varsity will equal that of the present team.

FORECAST FOR NEXT SEASON

AGLANCE at California's track and field future opens a vista of unlimited possibilities for the repetition of greater feats than those of the remarkable 1921 season. With all but four of the Blue and Gold stars back again next year dopesters cannot hesuate to predict another championship team at Berkeley.

Captain Sprott is, perhaps, the greatest loss that will handicap Coach Walter Christic when he issues the call for the 1922 season. Pesky has long been the distance star of the Bruin cinder path artists and his place in the mile and 880-yard runs will be hard to fill. Mejia and Waltz, distance men, will be among those missing next year. The Varsity, however, is not short on the long-winded runners, for new stars

Troom was treed in

A big hole will be left in the weight events when Cort Majors steps out, for he has always been a consistent Bruin point-winner and at times produced stellar exhibitions. Mathews, Muller and Nishi are still on deck and also some good material from the Freshman team. Christic expects Brick Muller to startle the world next year as the best all-around athlete in America.

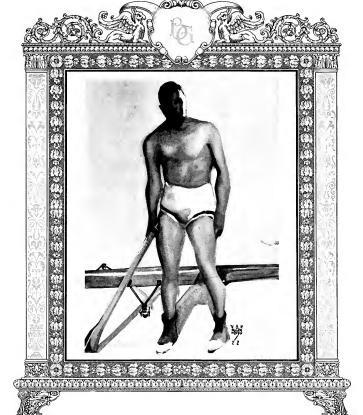

If California won points in the other events this year, she is certain to do as well next year, for the present sprint, hurdle, and relay com-

THE FRESHMAN SQUAD

CREW

John M. Rogers '21 comes from Hemet, a place which is a long way from the water and boasts of no seagoing men. However, since his arrival at California, 'Johnny' has been trying to atter this, and after a year on the second Varsity and a year on the first eight, he was elected to captain the 1921 boat. Rogers has always rowed bow, a point of vantage for the captain.

This year's crew season has been most successful and under his leadership the Varsity defeated the northern crew for the first time in Pacific Coast rowing history and is now preparing to go east to meet the leading crews of that section.

ROGERS, CAPTAIN

FOREWORD

ALIFORNIA for the first time in history has had a banner year in crew. Stanford dropped out of the running and the one remaining rival in the West was the University of Washington. Year after year the Sundodgers had come from the North and with seeming clocklike regularity defeated the Blue and Gold, sometimes by feet, other times by lengths.

In 1921, however, California in a brilliant race crossed the finish line on the Oakland Estuary five feet ahead of Washington in the fastest time ever made upon the Pacific Coast.

But even with the success of the sport at California, the future of crew in the West is uncertain. The failure of Stanford to put an eight upon the water was a hard blow and the burden of keeping interest alive in the great collegiate sport rests upon Washington and California.

There is, however, the possibility of Eastern competition. The Blue and Gold Varsity is going East to the Poughkeepsie regatta in June and, previous to this race, will row Princeton over a two-mile course. If California is victorious in either of these races, the strength of Pacific Coast competition will be shown and the future of the sport assured in the West.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

1922 PLUE S.

He call for crew candidates was sounded earlier than previous years and a sign-up rally was held by Captain Rogers on September 2nd. At this time over one hundred men signed up. Four veterans of last year's Varsity, seven members of the second boat as well as six from the '23 Freshman eight were found to be on the list. Prospects looked bright for a winning crew in the coming season.

In order to put the men in condition before the intensive spring season began, workouts on the machines were started early in the fall semester. Special attention was paid to the first year men in the development of form in order that the Babes would be fully prepared to take to the water with the advent of spring.

As soon as the weather permitted regular workouts on the estuary began and before a month had passed, a tentative line-up had been chosen by Coach Ben Wallis. The line-up at this time was: Bow, Rogers (Captain); No. 2, Griffin, veteran letterman; No. 3, McMillan, All-American football player and member of last year's second crew; No. 4, Kemp, of last year's second boat; No. 5, Downs, 1920 Varsity man; No. 6, Marquardson, Varsity man; No. 7, Mechan, 1920 Varsity man; stroke, Larsen, also of last year's first eight, and coxswain, Repath, of the 1920 second Varsity.

The Varsity, with this line-up, rowed over a two-mile course, against a strong tide, in good time at the big Interclass Crew Regatta held on the estuary March 12th.

The interclass contest served to bring out some good material and, although no changes were made in the first crew, the personnel of the second and third boats was radically changed.

Bob Griffin was taken ill with the munnps two weeks before the race and many changes were made in the line-up. His loss broke up the perfect rhythm, but intensive workouts were scheduled and the new line-up rapidly developed the form which was to result in the victory over the Northern invaders.

Too much credit cannot be given to Coach Wallis, who worked day after day during the preliminary season to develop a crew that could go into the Washington race prepared to bring victory to the University.

WALLIS, COACH

INTERCLASS BACE

OUR class crews and the first Freshman eight lined up for the start of the annual interclass races on the morning of March 12th. This year's regatta proved to be one of the largest events of its kind ever held in the bay region, and a larger crowd than those of previous years turned out to see the different races which were planned.

The Junior crew upset all previous calculations by leading the Sophomores over the finish line, winners by over two lengths. The Seniors and Freshmen sprinted for the line, the latter crossing a bare length ahead of the "21 men. The Freshmen class crew came in a poor fifth.

WASHINGTON REGATTA 1920

On Lake Washington

ANDICAPPED by a rough voyage north on the steamer and bad weather in Seattle, the Varsity oarsmen were in poor condition when they lined up with Washington on April 22nd. The water was rough at the time of the race, but it was decided to hold the event. At the mile mark, and with California leading, the Washington boat swamped and in spite of the fact that California finished the race it was decided to hold another contest.

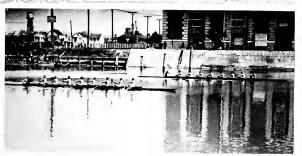

Five feet gave the Northerners the victory in the second race held under perfect water conditions and proving to be the closest race ever seen on Lake Washington. The time was good, the three miles being covered in 16:33.

The Freshman race proved to be a walkaway for the Washington Babes, who finished three boat lengths ahead of the Bruin first year men. The California men ran up too high a stroke in the beginning of the race and were unable to sprint at the finish, when their strength was most needed to carry them to victory.

The Northerners spend a great deal of time in the development of a strong Freshman eight and rely on them to fill the vacant places in the next year's Varsity.

The California Varsity returned home, after the Northern race, resolved to win from Washington in the next race. The defeat served as a spur toward victory in the coming season.

THE WASHINGTON BACE 1921

Oakland estuary to see a race that was to occupy a prominent place in Pacific Coast rowing history. Prospects for a Blue and Gold victory were the brightest they had been in years and critics had predicted such a victory.

Two preliminary races were held resulting in victory for the Bruin second Varsity over the South End club and for the second Freshmen over the Alameda High School boat. The great crowd that thronged the banks and covered the bridges began to grow restless with expectancy.

At 10 o'clock, starting over an hour late, the rival crews began the three-mile grind. The question in each spectator's mind was—Would Coach Wallis' dream of beating the Northerners be realized at last?

After a quarter of a mile neck-and-neck sprint, the Bear eight slowly began to forge ahead and at the mile and a half mark they were leading by a length. The blue-tipped oars were bitting the water at the rate of 32 strokes to the minute, a rate which was never varied until the final dash for the finish.

With the finish line in sight, both crews were rowing evenly and without a sign of the least apparent strain.

CROSSING THE FINISH LINE FIVE FEET AHEAD OF THE NORTHERNERS

As the shadow of the last bridge on the water, lay less than a quarter of a mile away, the Northern coxswain called for an increase in the stroke to 38 per minute and Repath of the Bear boat responded with an equal increase. The two shells were now gliding over the water in the gruelling sprint for the finish. The margin which separated the boats was steadily decreasing and that much-dreaded Northern sprint seemed about to turn defeat into victory. However, the Washington sprint had started too late, and the California boat glided over the finish line a victor, for the first time in sixteen years, by five feet.

California had won the championship of the Pacific Coast in rowing and the enthusiasm of the crowd of spectators knew no bounds. In accordance with the Western custom the defeated invaders rowed over and surrendered their jerseys to the victors.

The victory came as a result of a long period of conscientious training on the part of the men and of unselfish, determined coaching on the part of Ben Wallis.

The official time was 15 minutes and 33 seconds, which bettered the former Pacific Coast record. This in itself is considered a remarkable feat and should the California Varsity go east in the coming summer, prospects are bright for victory over the Eastern crews.

(C) (C) (C) 1922 BLUE

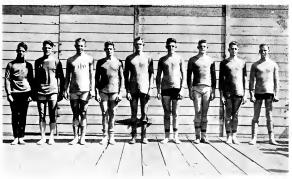

FRESHMAN RACE

HE first year men were unable to follow the example set by the Varsity and, fighting gamely to the end, were beaten by a full three lengths. The Sun Dodger eight took the lead at the start and held it throughout the race, their superior oarsmanship proving too much for the Bears.

The Washington Freshmen rowed in perfect form throughout the race and at the finish seemed in excellent condition. The California men splashed water throughout the race and seemed to lose their form at the finish. The Babes put up a good fight, however, and were only beaten because the Northerners were a far superior crew.

The advent of the high schools of the bay district into the rowing arena should prove a big factor in the development of next year's Freshman crew. The Alameda High School crew has made rapid progress considering that this is their first year on the water and should furnish good material from which to mould future Freshman and Varsity eights.

THE FRESHMAN CREW

THE EASTERN TRIP

ALIFORNIA'S 1921 Varsity crew, with its victory over Washington on April 9th, won the right to go east to the Intercollegiate Regatta at Poughkeepsie in June. This will be the first time that a Western eight has entered the regatta since 1915, when Stanford lost to Cornell by less than a length.

The Varsity will probably meet Princeton on June 4th on the trip to Poughkeepsie. This race would take place before the other regatta and would serve to give the men a taste of Eastern competition. Princeton has, it is generally conceded, the best crew on the Eastern waters this year, and a victory over the Orange and Black would be a memorable feat.

Little is known of the Blue and Gold's possibilities of victory in the Poughkeepsic regatta at the present. Columbia and Cornell have consistently, year after year, turned out excellent crews and besides these crews California will have to face many others, including at least two foreign crews, possibly from England.

Eastern crews, as a general rule, have better form than do the Western, but this disadvantage is met by the greater strength prevalent in Western boats.

APTAIN D. H. WRIGHT '21 won his letter last year in the California-Stanford matches when he, as California's untried man and find of the year, won his match in the singles. This year he has been a hard-hitting, consistent player in the inter-club series and through his generalship he has produced a team that California may well be proud of and that should bring honor to the University.

Prior to the Stanford series, Wright resigned and E. L. Levy '21 was elected to captain the tennis team.

WRIGHT, CAPTAIN

on twenty-nine years California and Stanford have met in annual court matches and successful wearers of the Blue and Gold have been awarded the Block C for their efforts, while the Redshirts have gained a Circle S until this past year. Henceforth Stanford victors will also wear the block letter. With this change, each institution has been restricted to a four-man team to play in a five-event match.

The State of California has always fathered tennis and regularly produces champions. California and Stanford, smaller units within, have fostered their share of victors to vie with those of similar units of the East. Last year the Blue and Gold invasion of the East brought fame to the University and formed the first vanguard in athletic victories that California has now established.

Tennis, as played in championship circles, is a hard-hitting game requiring consistent practice and competition and a watchful eve and a quick mind. The sport itself deserves more attention than it has been given.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

CONSISTENT competition and a hard interclub series marked the 1921 preliminary season of the Blue and Gold Tennis Varsity. The squad at the beginning of the inter-club series was cut down to a first and second division team, of seven men cach.

1977 BY

In the first matches of the inter-club series on March 27th, Bruin's first division team tasted defeat at the hands of the strong California Club, while the second division squad scored a decisive victory over the Martinez clubmen.

On March 6th the first and second squads met the Olympic Club stars and took fourteen matches out of the eighteen played. Willie Davis, fifth ranking player in the United States, suffered defeat at the hands of Wally Bates in a fast match. Playing for third place in the interclub matches, the Blue and Gold Varsity lost to the Berkeley Club, five matches to four. The feature event of the day was the defeat of William Johnston and Ward Dawson by Levy and Bates in two hardtought sets.

Winning three out of four matches, California on April 1st defeated Pomona College in the first intercollegiate match of the season. Bates, Levy and Weinstein represented the Blue and Gold.

The wearers of California's colors in the inter-elub matches were: First division, Captain Wright, Levy, Bates, Weinstein, Rothchild, Martin and Powers; second division, Stevens, White, Coombs, Conrad and Switzer.

1920 EASTERN TRIP

ALIFORNIA'S four-man tennis team composed of E. L. Levy '21, T. P. Martin '21, J. J. Rothchild '21 and Wallace Bates '23 invaded the East during the summer months of 1920 and were successful in twelve out of fourteen matches played. Brun combination was easily victorious over the net stars of such institutions as Harvard, Cornell, Princeton and Dartmouth and was humbled only by the strong Yale and Kings County Terrace aggregations. The strongest opposition was encountered at Yale, where only two matches were won against Old Eli's four. These were played near the end of the tour and the playing of the Blue and Gold men had weakened at the end of the month of strenuous travel. Before this match California had defeated a majority of the West and Middle West institutions and was conceded the intercollegiate championship of those districts. Therefore, when California met Yale the stake was the four-man team intercollegiate championship of the United States, which went to Yale despite the fight of the Blue and Gold, who established herself in second place.

MINOR SPORTS

1022 ELUL - GOLD

FOREWORD

INOM athletics, while not keeping pace with the growth of major athletics at the University of California, have nevertheless grown greatly in importance and favor.

Minor sports give to the students of the University a greater chance for athletic competition. The various branches of the sports are numerous and a large number of students find it possible to compete, the training and restrictions being less severe.

It is unfortunate that there has not been greater attendance at the minor athletic games, but the nature of the sports makes this impossible. Those games that are played are not so generally before the people that they are considered an important branch of the American sport curriculum.

In spite of all this, minor athletics will tend to grow and will prove of great value in forming a source for extensive athletic training, as opposed to the intensive training in major athletics.

RUGBY

raging one of the biggest surprises of the season, California's rugby team held the Stanford team to a 3 to 3 tie in a hard-fought game on California Field on December 5th. The Blue and Gold was the aggressor throughout and forced the Cardinals to the limit to save themselves from defeat.

Although the California leam contained several rugby stars, the Stanford team as a whole was conceded to be the more finished team and was expected to come out of the fray an easy victor. The California forwards were continually on the ball and, contrary to pre-season dope, the strength of the Blue and Gold lay in a strong backfield, whose playing was the feature of the game. The ball was fed to the backs from the ruck by both teams at every opportunity and resulted in backfield runs which were usually unsuccessful due to the soggy condition of the field.

The following men were awarded Circle Cs for playing on the team: E. A. Poage, J. Kegley, C. A. Launstein, H. Pierce, J. Rhodes, A. F. Lawrence, P. A. Bloomhart, W. A. Hermle, A. C. SWIMMING

T THE start of the 1921 season the Varsity was forced to build up an entire new team, all veterans having left the University. Prospects at the beginning of the year did not appear bright, but as the season progressed new men were discovered by Coach Montell and a well-balanced team was formed.

Ted Merrill '22 was elected Captain and B. J. O'Connor '21 was appointed Varsity Manager. Lack of competition worked a hardship on the team, and but three meets were arranged during the Spring Semester. The interclass was held at Piedmont Baths early in February and fast times were made in all events. The Freshmen won the meet with a score of 421/6, the Juniors second with 23, the Sophomores third with $13\frac{1}{2}$, and the Seniors last with 3.

On March 16th the Varsity met the fast Olympic Club team and, although defeated by a score of 46 to 22, made an excellent showing against the experienced clubmen.

The 1924 class turned out some fine material for swimming and had an easy time in showing their supremacy in the interclass meet.

The Varsity played eleven games in the long season which ended on February 5th and won seven games, lost three and tied one.

The first Stanford game was played on West Field the morning of November 20th and ended in a 1 to 1 tie. California lost the second game at Palo Alto two weeks later by a score of 2 to 0. The Blue and Gold team was somewhat handicapped by disqualifications and cripples.

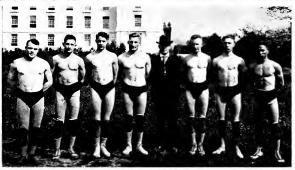

The Freshman team was considered as good if not better than the Varsity, and, after a 3 to 3 tic, defeated the Cardinal babes by a score

ALIFORNIA Varsity wrestlers completed a successful season when they overwhelmed the Cardinal mat men by a score of 21 to 3 in the annual intercollegiate meet held March 9, 1921, at Palo Alto, in Encina Gymnasium. Stanford registered one fall in the contest, two going to the Blue and Gold artists as well as two decisions.

Only through the untiring efforts of Charles Andrews, who has coached the men all through their mat experience, has the squad been built into a winning combination. Coach Andrews has spent a good deal of time in making defensive wrestlers of the men as well as good aggressive workers.

Interest has been worked up among the members of the Wrestling Club through sending out men to give exhibition bouts at smokers and similar functions and by staging competitive meets on Thursday afternoons throughout the season.

The Varsity wrestlers were: D. K. Chang '22 (125 pounds), R. A. Malmsten '23 (135 pounds), Nathan Newby '23 (145 pounds), Captain E. C. Golden '21 (158 pounds), and E. E. Patterson '21 (175 pounds).

BOXING

ALIFORNIA'S varsity boxing team went down to defeat March 11th when the Cardinal squad won decisions in the three conference weights, 125, 135 and 145-pound classes. Stanford was unable to enter men in the other weights due to the ineligibility rulings of that institution. Although the bouts were hard fought by the Blue and Gold men, they were unable to stop the fast clinching rushes of the Redshirts. The other two bouts were boxed as exhibitions in which the Bruin pugilists were more successful.

The second meet of the season with U. S. C., held March 27th in Harmon gymnasium, resulted in the California men winning three out of the five bouts. This is the first year that the Southern institution has entered a team for intercollegiate meets, and they will probably continue to do so in the future, following their successful 1921 season.

It has been largely due to the efforts of Coach "Bobbie" Johnson that more than the usual amount of interest has been worked up among the boxers and spectators for this sport. With several men fighting for each position on the squad, his task was a difficult one to pick the best men to represent the Blue and Gold.

145-POUND BASKETBALL

ITH a successful preliminary season behind them, the California 145-pound team entered the P. A. A. tournament with every man confident of victory. It was not until the semifinals that the team was defeated by the fast Olympic Club The final whistle finding the Bruin aggregation with a 50-29 defeat chalked up against them.

Although Coach Earl Wight was busy looking after the Varsity, he saw that the weight men received their share of coaching. It was through his efforts that the team went through such a successful season.

The fast team work and accurate shooting of the team as a whole made it possible for the Blue and Gold five to chalk up numerous victories in the early part of the season and put up such strong competition in their final game with the Winged "O" men.

Negotiations were opened with Stanford University to arrange for a series of games with that institution, but the Cardinals found it impossible to enter an aggregation for the 1921 season.

Circle "C's" were awarded to the following men: A. C. White, captain; H. E. Williams and H. Buckalew, forwards; R. A. Ure, W. A. White, J. S. Manildi and H. I. Green, guards, and R. M. Evans, center.

130-POUND BASKETBALL

ONTRARY to previous years, the Blue and Gold 130-pound basketball squad had an off season, losing two of the three games played with Stanford. Although the games were fast and hard fought throughout, the Bruin five was defeated by a few points in each case due to the accurate shooting of the Cardinal aggregation. Starting with a five-pound handicap, the Redshirts turned the tide against the local quintet.

Owing to the lateness in finishing the season's preliminary games, difficulty was met in entering the weight team in the P. A. A. The final outcome of this tournament left the Bear five on the short end of the score in the semi-finals and a victory for the Alpine Club. The Blue and Gold men went down to defeat in the last few minutes of play when their opponents threw several field goals in rapid succession.

Although R. M. Evans was kept busy with the 145-pound team, he found time to coach the 130-pound squad and it was largely through his efforts that the team work of the combination was developed. Their one weakness was a lack of accurate shots to drop the ball through the circle after it had been worked under the opponents' goal.

With most of the team back on the court next year the prospects are bright for turning out a winning combination.

CROSS-COUNTRY

ALIFORNIA'S cross-country team overwhelmingly defeated the Stanford distance runners by a score of 17 to 52 on the morning of the Big Game. The victory was the second consecutive one for the Blue and Gold and in winning teams both institutions are tied, Stanford having won the first two races.

Thirty-one runners started over the four and a half mile course through the lower end of the campus. Stanford claimed only two places in the first, Elliott taking fourth place and Rouselott eight. Crippen (C), led for the first three and a half miles, but in the last stretch he was beat out by Dorr (C), and Captain Waltz (C), who took first and second places respectively.

In the opinion of Coach Christic the 1920 cross-country team contained a larger field of high-class runners than any other squad ever turned out at California for the annual distance run. With the personnel of this squad as a nucleus for next year an exceptionally strong team is likely to be developed.

The first ten men finished as follows: Dorr (C), Captain Waltz (C), Crippen (C), Elliott (S), Frost (C), Kitts (C), Hawes (C), Rouselott (S), Davie (C) and Smith (C).

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

FOREWORD

OMEN'S athletics have gone through a successful season and have a still brighter outlook for the future. Although because of a lack of space and cquipment, sports have been limited, this difficulty will be alleviated, should the women receive California Field after the stadium is built.

Plans are already underway for the heating of the swimming pool and its new opening in the coming fall. Along with this added incentive to those women interested in swimming, opportunity will also be afforded to participate in other outdoor sports. Among these are two altogether new but promising activities—hiking and horsemanship. The latter has been carried on at other universities and has proved to be one of the most popular of women's sports.

The old Sports and Pastimes Association has been reorganized and has become the Women's Athletic Association. This new organization will broaden the scope of women's athletics and opportunity will be given every woman member to take part in the sports and to win honor and fame for the University.

ILEEN TAYLOR.

TENNIS

TENNIS as the only year sport, gave evidence of its popularity by the large numbers who turned out for it.

In the fall, continuous interclass tournaments were played, in which every contestant had an equal opportunity to win. During the spring semester, an climination tournament was held in each class.

After the tournaments, teams were chosen, selections being made on the attendance at weekly coaching as well as playing ability. Interclass matches were played and rivalry was keen for the chance to play on Field Day.

On April 9th, the singles and first doubles of each class met the respective teams of Stanford.

This year's successful season was due to the combined efforts of Mrs. Knight, as coach; Helen Taussig '21, general manager, and Leonore Morris '21, Ruth Patrick '22, Lillian McHoul '23 and Marguerite Lanc '24, class managers.

Lillian McHoul '23 was awarded a racquet for her excellent playing and sportsmanship.

The All-Star team was: Mrs. Knight, honorary; Margaret Priddle '21, Ruth Patrick '22, Heen Taylor '22, Maile Vicars '23.

After weeks of strenuous practice, class teams were chosen. Interclass games were played to determine which teams would be eligible to participate in the final match held on Field Day, April 2nd. Victory went to the Seniors, who by a score of 38 to 8 won the cup offered to the winner of this event.

Coaching was in the hands of Miss Josephine Guion, whose efforts added much to the season's success. The general manager, Helen Bannister '21, was assisted by managers from the classes as follows: Iskah Thrall '21, Doris Adams '22, Alice Lambert '23, Grace Knowles '24.

Members of the All-Star team were: Guards, Dorothy Allen 21; Gera Chism '22, Katherine Noble '23; forwards, Helen Bannister '21, Iskah Thrall '21, Maile Vicars '23; centers, Lois Carroll '21, Katherine Reidy '21, Winnie Wilbur '22.

HANDBALL

ITH handball again on a firm basis, another sport has offered opportunity for the enlargement of the women's athletic field. The past year has proven the necessity for such expansion, as many women have adopted the sport and have carried it through a successful season.

Interclass matches were held early in the year, resulting in a tie between the Juniors and Sophomores. Intense interest was aroused over the intercollegiate competition with Mills College. Each class entered a team, but only the Sophomore representatives were able to win their match from the visitors. However, this aroused the desire to further the sport for the ensuing term.

Much credit is due Miss Caroline Coleman, who ably coached the teams, and also the managers, Margaret Lawson '20, general manager; Senior, Iskah Thrall; Junior, Gera Chism; Sophomore, Katherine Noble; Freshman, Delpha Weisendanger. The team that showed to the best advantage during the past season was composed of Any Wells '21, Gera Chism '22 and Katherine Noble '23. Plans have already been made for a series of matches for next year so that the pastime will be assured when athletic competition is renewed.

WHERE AGILITY BRINGS VICTORY

FENCING

ENCING is an activity which has its life only during the fall semester. However, through the activities of the club, La Rapiere, enthusiasts of this sport remain interested during the entire college year.

From the large turnout during the past season, teams were chosen from each class on the basis of individual ability. In the interclass bouts which were held last fall, the Senior team emerged victorious due to their superior skill and longer experience at the sport.

As coach, the University was most fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Robert Miller of San Francisco Olympic Club. Merle Hale, as general manager, and the following class managers aided Mr. Miller in his work: Vivian Wilkinson '21, Caroline tum Suden '22, Mary Rixford '23 and Ruth Haywood '24.

The All-star team was made up of the following women: Merle Hale '21, Lulu Marie Jenkins '21, Helen Bannister '21, Caroline

THE JUNIOR HOCKEY TEAM

HOCKEY

ESPITE such difficulties as a lack of proper space and facilities for practice, hockey has become one of the most popular women's sports on the campus. Women who had never played the game before have now become enthusiastic supporters of this fascinating sport.

Keen competition throughout marked the interclass matches, and because of the practice received in these games the Junior and Sophomore teams decisively defeated the representatives of Mills College in the intercollegiate matches.

Credit for the advancement of this sport is largely due the coaches. Mss Ruth Elliott and Miss Edith Ueland, who with the aid of the managers have been responsible for the high caliber of the teams turned out during the past season. Beth Boggs 21 acted as general manager and the following as class managers: Mary Martin 21, Lona Noble 22, Lillian McHoul 23 and Georgia Colombat 24.

The following members of the All-California team were awarded gold emblems: Beth Boggs '21, Mary Martin '21, Florence Randall '21, Grace Hutton '22, Grace Allen '22, Harriet Patterson '22, Katherine Noble '23, Lillian McHoul '23 and Francis Garth '23.

ENTHUSIASIS PREPARE FOR PRACTICE

CREW

REW season this year was a successful one, judging both from the large number of women who turned out at the first call and the enthusiastic interest shown throughout the entire semester.

Under the efficient direction of Miss Caroline Coleman, four well trained class crews were picked to take part in the annual interclass regatta held April 2nd on Lake Merritt. In one of the most closely contested races of years, the Sophomores barely nosed out the Juniors for first place, winning by a quarter length.

The annual intercollegiate race with Mills College was not held this year because of conflicting dates. At the end of the season the following were named on the All Star 1921 Crew: Lona Noble '22, Beth Boggs '21, Marguerite Lane '21, Dorothea Edgar '21, Nydia LeTourneau '21, Muriel Cooper '22, Ruth Barnes '21, Roene Emery '21, Margaret Leidig '23, Dorothea Epley '22, Barbara Leach '21, Margaret McCone '22, Muriel Genelly '22 and Mildred Johnson '22.

The teams were well managed by the following: Ruth Barnes '21, general manager; Barbara Leach '21, Lona Noble '22, Margaret Leidig '23, and Helen Harris '24.

CANOEING

ANOEING has offered a form of keen competition during the past two semesters to the large number of women who signed up for this sport. Under the direction of Miss Violet Marshall, the canoeing squads showed excellent form and from each class squad, a first tandem, a second tandem and a singles paddler were chosen to represent the class.

The interclass races were held on Regatta Day at Lake Merritt. The Graduates won the first landem race with the Freshmen a close second. In the second tandem, the Freshmen overtook the Sophomores in the final sprint and won the most exciting race of the day by a scant margin. The Juniors carried off the honors in the singles race after a hard fight against the Seniors.

Following the successful season the annual Field Day luncheon was held, at which time the following were chosen on the All Star canoeing team: Ruth Allen '21, Dorothy Williams '21, Agnes Dalziel '22, Dorothea Epley '22, and Dorrance Glasscock '23.

The following managed the teams: Agnes Dalziel '22, general manager; Dorothy Williams '21, Dorotha Albert '22, Evelyn Weeks '23, and Ruth Haywood '24.

VERY woman in the University who participates in athletics is a member of the Sports and Pastimes Association. Through the medium of this organization, a closer relationship is brought about between those whose efforts have been directed toward raising women's athletic activity to the high place which it now holds in campus interest. As a result of this closer co-operation, narrow interest in a particular activity in which one is engaged is broadened to include a wide interest in the entire sphere of feminine sports.

Guiding the efforts of the association is an executive committee designed to carry on the business of the organization and to settle all problems relating to women's athletics. Upon this committee are: President, Grace Bliss '21, general athletic manager of women's sports; treasurer, Grace Allen '22; secretary, Doris Adams '22, and the following general managers of various sports, Merle Hale '20, Margaret Lawton '20, Edith Pasmore '20, Helen Bannister '21, Ruth Barnes '21, Beth Boggs '21, Helen Taussig '21, Agnes Dalziel '22.

YOSEMITE VALLEY

In the sounding splendor of cateroct and the tumbling rush of river, in the spell of sheer precipice and lowering crog and in the ture of applicage and trail, Yosemite knows no peer among the play-places of the earth.

FOREWORD

N THIS portion of our book, where Sublime Learning is viewed with impunity, where Events bow to Incidents, and where the concerned data of the Seribe gives way to the banter of the Jester—here, that Continuous Show, the Frolic of Foibles, receives its annual Review. There is little stamping space here for personal antipathies; these emotions receive fulsome expression behind the Scenes and in the Flies—here we but hold brief with the Actors themselves, who essay Vanity, Ostentation, Conceit and all such too-difficult Roles that the Novice is ever over-bold to attempt.

So, if occasionally there appears piquant Revelation, it is but more aptly to disclose how fallible is Reputation, and if Caricature occurs, it is but better to reveal the imperfection of the Portrait. If at times in our gentle censure there seems to lurk the malicious thrust, know it as but the inadvertent comment of the too-zealous Critic of the Show.

There is never intent to injure, but rather, by Lampoon and Jest, to stir a casual ripple of retrospective mirth that will, perhaps, tend to make even more pleasant remembrance of the Show.

Don J. Gillies. Robert L. Ingram.

THE CLASS OF 1922

Events has her record in the Blue and Gold. Incident shall have hers in the Few and Gld. To Incident, then, is this effort consecrated, and to those unfortunate souls, who, all unknowingly, adorn the pages to follow is it deficients. Foreive us if we commune with Indiscretion.

> CALIFORNIA CAMPUS MCMXXII

The University

In presenting these several scenes of college life, we beg indulgence, and plead all due respect for the University section of the Blue and Gold; we feel, however, that there are scenes as familiar to the campus eye as those therein put forward, which, strange to relate, have not found shelter beside their fellows. That this record may be augmented is our motive; to Accuracy, therefore, have we pledged this section.

I ow different these men from the residents of the Bench! Blasé, indeed, are the miners in their tranquil repose—all oblivious to the allurements of passing femininity—and one wonders why. Perhaps their gold-digging pursuits have made them wary of its possible usurpation by others.

Many there are that have found inspiration in the expiring embers of the bonfire after a rally in the Greek Theater; here, viewing through tear-dimmed eyes the embers of an old Greek temple, are we reminded that in this instance the inspiration (in considerable quantities) preceded the rally.

Here, before this glorious structure, the fair ones gather to study and to be studied. At various hours of the day, and particular ones of the evening, the X Horseshoe sisters may be seen in all their Holeproof grandeur.

Many are the memories that hover about the Upperclass Bench—and many the bums. None but super-men may here recline, for none but super-men can withstand the eye strain.

DIFFERENT, indeed, is the motive that actuates, or rather, fails to actuate the gentlemen lingering at Bancroft and Telegraph. Students of transportation are they, and that they may compute the financial status of the traction company, they daily observe the feminine traffic.

WALKING having become nothing more than the profession of the postman, the Co-ed, ever murmuring, drives her weary two blocks to the campus, there to complain of the absence of elevators—in the Co-op.

In utter dejection—these sad inhabitants of the metal parlor contemplate with melancholy tenderness their New Year's resolutions. As then, the rapid click-click of the spotted parallelograms lured, now the slow click of the lock dismays.

DICE TEAM WINS FROM 7 TO 11 YEARS

Dice Throwing

HE nincteen-hundred-twenty Dice Throwing Team may well be called the "wonder-team." Under the capable coaching of Head Coach George Washington White, Tuskegee Institute '05, the California Dice Throwers literally "cleaned up." In the preliminary contests, the team experienced little opposition, rolling naturals with an ease that was, indeed, a pleasure to watch. With the exception of one regrettable incident in which the team was accused of using "loaded" instruments, and subsequently put to flight by their opponents' razors, the preliminary season was more than satisfactory. Indeed, to quote Coach White:

"Mah lawd, I neber done see so many natch'ruls!"

The big contest with the West Oakland Pullman Gentlemen's Association resulted in a close battle, the California throwers maintaining a slight lead until about 3:30 a. m., when the Berkeley Police, who had been sent by the special order of the Chief, himself once a member of a victorious California Throwing Team, arrived as an escort of honor for the collegians. At the approach of the escort, our worthy opponents left hurriedly to keep an appointment in the vicinity of Mexico. Declaring the university boys the victors, the escort conducted the team home to the municipal hotel in triumph. The photograph on the opposite page shows the finish of the victory parade.

MINOR SPORTS

Pussyfooting

ora thousand candidates turned out this season for the pussyfooting team, and so much time was spent in the process of elimination that no contest was held with the combined teams of the Palace and St. Francis. The photograph below shows the new stadium, which required four days' careful watching before it could be photographed sans occupants.

Publications

HE past year has been indeed a fortunate one for the publicity grabbers. The staff of the "Few and Old" has been unable to determine the causes of this condition, but the consensus which is the constraint of opinion is that it results from one of two things: either competition between the campus publicity grabbers has become unusually keen, or else (and this is the most plausible theory) the newspapers has been unusually keen, or else (and this is the most plausible theory) the newspapers has been indeed a fortunate one for the publicity grabbers.

The documents on this page are of a different order; they are feature stories just released for publication.

ASK THE MAN WHO WEARS ON E

THE RIME OF THE ANCIENT PHI BETE

'Tis a lean and hungry Phi Bete, And he stoppeth one of three. "By thy careworn look and thy hollow cheeks, Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?" He holds him with his skinny hand, "When I was a youth," quoth he. "Hold off! Unhand me, wild-eyed loon!"

Efstoons his hand dropt he.

He holds him with his glittering eye; The one of three stood still, And listens like a gawking Frosh: The Phi Bete has his will.

"When I was young and in my prime, All 'ones' my records were; In exile with my books I stayed, Nor from them did I stir.

"My friend, look on this ruined man Who sage advice doth bring; Do never strive to make Phi Bete— It doesn't mean a thing."

The Poet:

"Calm is the night,
The stars are bright
And peace is everywhere;

SONG OF THE CAMPUS POLITICIAN

I'm a campus politician
With an ax to grind;
With a manner unpatrician
And a one-track mind.
Oh, I never foster malice
Through effete commands;
On my palm has grown a callous
Just from shaking hands,

I can grow enthusiastic
When the need impels,
But my mind is very plastic
And my thinking cells
Will conform to contradictions
With an ease sublime—
Oh, I never have convictions
Till past voting time!

Sincerity's discarded
And one just pretends;
Why, if progress is retarded
I discard old friends.
These faults will not have mattered
Unrecalled, these sins,
When my vest is well-bespattered
With the honor pins!

You will have my approbation,
I will share your woes
If you give me indication
How your ballot goes.
I'm the friend of everybody,
I'm the glad-hand king.
Oh, my morals may be shoddy—
But the vote's the thing! D. G.

Brown eyes—so tranquil, tender, Voice, unassuming, low, A form so lithe and slender That where your footsteps go Desire says always, "Follow"— But prudence whispers, "No!"

TO M-

You said you loved me dearly,
I met your every whim;
You swore no strife should mar our love
Or fog of time bedim—
It made me sort of wonder

When you went and married him!

One student, in the reading room, in copying certain well-known advertising slogans was surprised to find himself writing this: "The hose shows."

Considering it as a rendezvous, one might say with some pertinence, that books are shelved in the library.

 Λ cinch course frequently demands a cinching of the mental belt before the semester is finished.

We venture to wonder whether an all-round political person ever can play a square game.

Spare Time and Spare Money

Are the poor man's surplus capital. His success in life depends on the returns from that capital.

If you would win advancement and prosperity, invest your spare time in self-improvement and deposit your spare money in a bank that pays interest. Then your capital will become a source of power and prosperity.

ELEGY

The campanile sadly tolls the knell of parting day,
And students wander homeward o'er the lea;
Each blinding crash from towered chimes brings fear upon the way,
For what the evening's hash may prove to be—

Whereas others, such as Bartie Crum, wend their way home to a "full-D" and furred soles.

THE PRESTIGE of GOOD TRADITION

B EHIND the reputation that places the University of California foremost among American colleges are its traditions of idealism, refinement and the highest standards. H. S. CROCKER COMPANY, INC., too, has well served its traditions, and because it has built on an ideal of service to its customers it has grown from an humble beginning in a tent sixty-five years ago to its present position of pre-eminence as California's foremost stationer and printer.

¶The high reputation of the Printing Department of the H. S. CROCKER COMPANY, INC., is built on the fact that its work is consistently of an exceptional standard.

¶In school publications the H. S. CROCKER COMPANY, INC., justifies its reputation by rendering particular service to its customers. Each book receives the same intelligent care by trained and willing experts.

Write for information about our system of handling copy which eliminates a large part of the work of preparing a book for the printer and reduces the cost of printing to a minimum.

THIS ISSUE OF THE BLUE & GOLD Designed and Printed by H. S. CROCKER COMPANY, INC.

HIS PUBLICATION is a sample of the every-day Binding of this leading & well-known house. Naturally, a force that is attuned to such quality in the daily grind is capable of better things, so we meet the desires of the most exacting customers without undue strain. This excellence is accompanied by service that eliminates the doubt and nerve-racking worry so often experienced by those customers of Printers and Binders who do not appreciate the value of service, in the way we appreciate it. For many years we have been delivering first-class Printing and Binding within the specified time and we will do it for you. For such quality and service call, write or phone Douglas 351 and have our representative call and talk it over.

AN APPRECIATION

W ORK on the 1922 BLUE AND GOLD now is finished and, whatever its short-comings, they are past our power to remedy; whatever its merits, they can be rendered no better. There remains but the few intervening days until the book leaves the press, to meet with favor or reproof from the student body it presumes to represent.

There is satisfaction in recalling various difficulties of the year that were overcome, and regret in remembering hopes that did not always come to fruition.

The Manager and Edilor, here bringing their task to an end, realize how inadequate would have been the result of their efforts had they lacked the co-operation of those capable ones who were always glad to assist or advise. They take this opportunity of reminding these friends of their appreciation.

Whatever merit the text may possess is largely due to the staffs, both Sophomore and Junior. We are grateful to them for their loyal service. Especially do we wish to thank Don Gillies, who is responsible for the splendid art captions which appear in the book.

To Frederick E. Keast and Walter J. Gores, of the H. S. Crocker Company, Inc., we wish to extend our thanks. Without their aid and advice during the year we would have been at a loss for a solution of many of the more difficult problems which confronted us. We are deeply indebted to the entire force of compositors and pressmen of the H. S. Crocker Company, Inc., especially Messrs. J. M. O'Neil, J. W. Hogan and D. F. Malloy, in whose hands the making of the book was entrusted.

Mr. Pedro J. Lemos has been associated with the BLUE AND GOLD for several years and has become almost a permanent member of the staff. His art work this year, we believe, surpasses anything he has done. We are grateful for his help.

Credit for the success of the color reproductions and halftones is due Mr. H. J. Griffiths, of the American Engraving and Color Plate Company, and bis corps of assistants. We are grateful to Robert P. Davis for his attention and interest.

To Mr. G. P. Gibson, of the Shaw Studio, and his staff we extend our thanks for the high-grade photographs which were supplied us. We believe that the standard of the pictures has never been higher.

Through the personal efforts of Mr. Arthur Towne, of the Blake, Moflitt & Towne Paper Company, a high grade of paper was obtained and early delivery secured.

The binding of the book is the work of John Kitchen, Jr., who has bound the BLUE AND GOLD for fifteen years. His inlerest in the book is well shown in the quality of his bindings.

There is little else to say, except that pride must always come in recalling the trust that was ours and the inspiring support that was accorded us.
